Korea Coups Shaky?

Public Support
Reported Slim

SEOUL, South Korea (Reuters)—South Korean Army reserve units today seized power here in a pre-dawn coup but reports indicated they did not have a firm grip on the country and were running into a lack of public support.

The reservists were in control of Seoul but American officials were working to convince them to abandon their coup and restore the legal government headed by Dr. John Chang.

A statement by the United States military command in Seoul, monitored in Tokyo, claimed that "no great amount of public support for the uprising has become apparent."

It said there appeared to be "only about 3,600 revolutionary troops" in Seoul. Earlier reports had placed the number of troops at 25,000.

"Troops of the frontline as well as the air force and navy remain steadfast in their positions and continue to assure the defence of the republic," the statement said. "Other cities in Korea remain relatively quiet."

CLAIMED CONTROL

The junta claimed earlier that it had control over other important South Korean cities and over all airports and harbors in the country.

It ordered martial law and a tight curfew imposed throughout the country and clamped censorship on South Korean newspapers.

American officials meanwhile appealed repeatedly to the leaders of the coup to restore the legal government of the country and pledged firm support for the administration by Dr. John Chang.

The revolutionary council set up by the leaders of the coup met for an hour this afternoon with acting American ambassador Marshall Green but showed no sign of giving in to the U.S. demands.

President Po Sun Yun, who also attended the meeting, was reported to be trying to work out a compromise that would involve forming a non-partisan cabinet in place of the revolutionary council to settle the problem without bloodshed.

SHOULD KNOW SOON

Observers said the next 12 to 24 hours should tell whether the junta would win or collapse. Much hinged on the attitude of heavily armed frontline South Korean troops.

The junta, led by army chief of staff Lt. Gen. Do Yung Chang, seized power after a violent gunbattle around the central government buildings about dawn.

The junta, after threatening earlier in the day to arrest all cabinet ministers, tonight promised that their safety would be guaranteed if they gave themselves up and resigned.

The junta said it was anti-Communist and wanted friendly relations with the United States.

Victoria Fair Midway Goes Big Time

All the tinselly razzle-dazzle of the midway throbbed to life in winking, flashing fairy lights as darkness descended over opening night at the Jaycee Fair Monday. Always the centre of activity, the carnival is symbolized and dominated by its 65-foot ferris wheel, affording from its crest a birdie-view of Victoria. New, enlarged units and truly "fair" weather promise a new attendance record by week's end. See Page 15. (Photo by Irving Strickland.)

Talks Shunned By Laos Gov't

GENEVA (Reuters)—The much-postponed Geneva conference on Laos today finally opened with an hour-long "business session," after which the delegates retired into secret session.

The 14-nation talks began after five days' delay over who should represent the strife-torn Indochina kingdom at the meeting.

As the delegates met in the old League of Nations Palace only the Communist-led Pathet Lao and the neutralist group of ex-Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma were on hand.

The Laotian government delegation refused to attend because the conference permitted the Pathet Lao to take part in the deliberations.

Earlier, a spokesman for the right-wing delegation had declared his group would walk out if representatives of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao organization or the neutralist backers of former premier Prince Souvanna Phouma were given more than observer status.

Today, the spokesman revised his stand and said the right-wing delegation would not attend unless it got fresh instructions from Vientiane, the Laotian administrative capital.

Ordered start today Britain and Russia, co-chairmen of the talks that were supposed to have started last Friday, ordered the conference to begin today after the United States reluctantly agreed to a compromise formula permitting full participation by the neutralist and pro-Communist delegations.

GOV'T IN EXILE PLAN Sao Paulo, Brazil (AP)—Portuguese Gen. Humberto Delgado said Monday a government in exile soon will be set up in Europe or Africa with the aim of toppling Premier Antonio Salazar.

SALES ARMS BAN The West was expected to seek a ban on all arms shipments to the Southeast Asian kingdom in an attempt to solidify the shaky truce there.

The British, Soviet, U.S. and French foreign ministers were reported to have reached tacit agreement to avoid raising issues that might put new obstacles in the way of negotiations in Laos between the warring factions for establishment of a single coalition government.

COLUMBIA CELLULOSE A subsidiary of Canadian Chemical and Cellulose Company Ltd., a holding company organized by Celanese Corporation of America, a U.S. company.

Since relations between the U.S. and Cuba were strained and eventually broken the U.S. government has banned all exports of U.S. goods to Cuba except medical supplies and food.

The Cuban orders are believed to be forerunners of others. B.C. Forest Products will provide future shipments.

RESIGNS

Lebanese government of Premier Saeb Salam resigned today, nine months after it was formed following the country's first general elections under President Fouad Shehab. Reason given was dissension in the 18-man cabinet following dismissal of six of its members last week.

U.S. 'Copter Missing

VIENTIANE (AP)—A helicopter and three Americans were reported missing today and feared down in rugged mountain territory partly controlled by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels.

'INSTANT' WATER SOLD TO GULLIBLE

TRUMANSBURG, N.Y. (AP)—Grocer James Crimmins believes that "if you are going to have a good time in this business, you have to make the laughs yourself."

So he set up a fancy display and put "instant water" on sale. The advertisement called it the "best possible way to make coffee, particularly instant coffee," and "fine for outdoor cooking."

Five persons bought the water Saturday, at 85 cents for a quart can.

Crimmins said he would refund the money.

WIRE BRIEFS

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Three cabinet ministers have been arrested in Stanleyville on the orders of Communist-backed Antoine Gizenga, the Lumumbist leader in Oriental province, it was announced today.

Nuns Leaving Cuba

OTTAWA (CP)—Sixty-three Canadian Roman Catholic nuns and priests in Cuba are being flown back to Canada with their arrival due this afternoon. Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced today.

Private Meeting Between Friends

GENEVA (AP)—Red Chinese diplomats here have made a carefully-timed approach to the Canadian team attending the Laos peace talks—possibly in the hope of better relations between Peking and Ottawa.

The move was disclosed today—the day of President and Mrs. John Kennedy's scheduled arrival in Canada on a brief official visit.

The Canadians have not accorded diplomatic recognition to the Chinese Communist regime, and External Affairs Minister Howard C. Green in an interview last week said he sees no prospect of recognition while Peking goes on pressing its claim to Formosa.

Canadian diplomats reported that the Chinese Reds made their quiet approach during the weekend and based it on an old personal friendship between two high-officials of the conference delegations now in Geneva.

The meeting was between two ambassadors—Wang Ping-nan, who heads the Chinese mission in Poland, and Chester Ronning, Canada's envoy in India.

In Ottawa, an external affairs department source said today the department has not yet received a formal report of contacts between Canadian and Red Chinese diplomats in Geneva, but described such meetings as "quite normal in the circumstances."

KNOWS CHINA WELL

Ronning, deputy leader of the Canadian delegation at the Laos talks, was born in China. He went to school with Wang and speaks fluent Chinese.

The formal purpose of Wang's visit to Ronning was described thus by Canadian sources:

1. To express Peking's thanks for the big Canadian grain sales to China at this time of acute food shortage.
2. To express thanks for the work Canada has put in as a member of the control commission umpiring the Laotian truce.

3. To convey an assurance that China genuinely wants Laos set up as a neutral country whose status would be internationally underwritten.

The developing pattern of Canada's future relations with Red China is considered a certain subject of discussion when President Kennedy meets with Prime Minister Diefenbaker today and Wednesday.

REDS UN BID DUE

While the Canadians may not recognize the Peking authorities, Diefenbaker at the same time is unlikely to vote against Red China's membership in the United Nations if that issue, as expected, comes to a head soon.

Canada currently is beginning to do big business with Red China.

Grain sales by 1963 are expected to top $400,000,000. Ottawa has invited Peking to send over an official trade mission to step up still further the volume of business between them.

Against that backdrop the Chinese move in Geneva is regarded as significant. Further exchanges between the two sides seem inevitable.

Kennedy Arrives At Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—President Kennedy arrived today for talks with Prime Minister Diefenbaker and a two-day "get acquainted" visit in Canada's capital.

The president and his attractive wife, received a public welcome second only to that seen on royal visits.

The RCAF base at south-side Uplands, where the presidential plane landed at 4:35 p.m. EDT (1:30 PDT), was thrown open to the public.

Hundreds of flags—the Canadian Ensign and the Stars and Stripes—were set out Monday at the air field and along the final section of the 12-mile route that the president will follow on his drive into the city.

RIDE IN CONVERTIBLES

President and Mrs. Kennedy were to travel in open convertibles—weather permitting. The weather forecast was for mixed clouds and sunshine and a temperature near 70—a break from the heat wave of the last three days.

The heat has forced tens of thousands of tulips into bloom and the peak of the famous tulip display thus coincides with the state visit.

This first day will be mostly formalities, starting with addresses of welcome at the airport by Governor-General Vanier and the prime minister. President Kennedy will reply, and also inspect an RCAF guard of honor.

Following their arrival at Government House, residence of the governor-general where they will stay, the president and Mrs. Kennedy will take part in the traditional tree-planting ceremony on Government House grounds.

Main events of the presidential visit come Wednesday. Mr. Kennedy will address members of the Commons and Senate in a Commons chamber speech that will be broadcast nationally by radio and television.

Survey Has Election Close, Slight Edge to Liberals

The contest in the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election is much closer than many politicians associated with it think.

And, contrary to some opinion, the edge, if any, is held at present by the Liberal party.

These are the conclusions arising from a scientific sampling of the riding conducted this month by a research agency, results of which were learned today.

The survey was conducted on May 1, 2 and 3 by the Watts Marketing Research Ltd. of Vancouver.

Their field workers talked to 300 people in the riding, 135 of them men and 165 women. The interviewers did not identify themselves with any political party, simply stating they were taking a survey.

Almost two-thirds of those interviewed gave definite answers to the question:

"Which party would you prefer to see win in the forthcoming Esquimalt-Saanich by-election?"

Slightly more than one-third of those interviewed expressed no opinion—indicating that there is still a large uncommitted vote in the riding at this stage.

However, out of the total questioned the Liberal party's percentage was 23.5% with the Progressive Conservatives second at 18.3%.

Following is the detailed breakdown by percentages:

	Total	Male	Female
CCF	300	135	165
Liberal	11.8%	14.1%	9.7%
Progressive Conservative	23.5	17.0	29.7
Social Credit	18.3	21.5	15.2
Don't Know	11.8	13.3	10.3
	34.6	34.1	35.1

There are 40,926 registered voters in the riding, so that the survey covers 73%. In the last general election 28,000 odd cast ballots.

An interesting sidelight is that among the women the Liberal share was 29.7% with the Conservatives next at 15.2%.

But among the men the Conservatives had the lead, with 21.5% to 17% for the Liberals.

The survey showed the CCF (New Party) at 11.8 per cent, exactly the same as Social Credit.

U.S. SUBSIDIARY INVOLVED

Canadian Pulp for Cuba

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Canadian subsidiary of a United States company is participating in a $1,000,000 order of pulp for Cuba.

The Columbia Cellulose Company plant at Prince Rupert is said to be providing more than half of a reported order of 9,000 tons of bleached and semi-bleached pulp.

The remainder of the order will be supplied by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company, a Canadian company.

The total order is reported to be worth between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000.

A Columbia spokesman said a Liberian ship now is loading pulp for Cuba at Prince Rupert.

But he said he did not know how much of the order the company is providing.

Columbia Cellulose is a subsidiary of Canadian Chemical and Cellulose Company Ltd., a holding company organized by Celanese Corporation of America, a U.S. company.

Since relations between the U.S. and Cuba were strained and eventually broken the U.S. government has banned all exports of U.S. goods to Cuba except medical supplies and food.

The Cuban orders are believed to be forerunners of others. B.C. Forest Products will provide future shipments.

New Algeria Violence

ALGIERS (Reuters) — Fresh clashes were reported between Moslems and Europeans today as tension remained high in this French North African territory.

FEDERAL government had no hand in forbidding the fraternization of Eskimo Ann Witaltuk and Australian Terry Whitfield, Northern Affairs Minister Dinsdale said today. He and Miss Witaltuk, 25, a registered nurse, met at Great Whale River, Que., a mid-Canada radar site, and want to marry, he says.

Red Missile Pads Spotted U.S. Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. The magazine noted that the data has been compiled from unclassified sources and added, "because of a tight Soviet control over military information, this data is derived from sources which are not necessarily accurate or complete."

And they figure the Russians have 35 to 50 long-range war rockets ready to shoot.

At least 10 of the reported missile pads have been identified as launch sites for the Soviet Union's 8,000-mile-range T3 missile, which carries a thermo-nuclear warhead.

Further, the United States has determined the location of 14 Russian missile and rocket factories.

All of this information appears in the May issue of Military Review, a magazine published by the U.S. Army.

RHEE'S IRON GRIP MISSING

Korea Army Too Strong for Weak Rule

John Randolph covered the Korean War at its height and observed events in South Korea while with the AP bureau in Tokyo. He now is general executive co-ordinating AP operations in Asia and is home on leave.

By JOHN RANDOLPH

The military coup in South Korea confirms long-standing fears that the little country's huge army might some day prove too strong for its feeble semblance of democracy.

It also underlines deposed president Syngman Rhee's iron-clad subordination of the armed forces to his civilian control.

For seven years after the end of the Korean War Rhee kept his 500,000 troops eating peacefully out of his hand. It took only 13 months after he fell from power in a students revolt last year for the soldiers to turn on his well-intentioned but weak successors.

The coup was another blow to Western hopes for democracy in the new nations of Asia and Africa. Beginning with Egypt, army dissidents have either swept away or transformed parliamentary regimes in the Sudan, Iraq, Thailand, Burma, Pakistan, Turkey, Laos and The Congo.

The reasons for the Korean coup are simple.

The bulk of the army are drawn from Korea's rice farms, where poverty and depression have lingered for years. Their officers are drawn from the educated classes of the towns and Korea's old nobility and country gentry.

Tried and tempered in the sufferings of the Korean War, passionately patriotic, terribly underpaid and unusually idealistic, many of the younger officers have dreamed of making over their country. Egypt's Nasser and Pakistan's Ayub Khan have been their principal models.

Korean farmers' hopes for reforms and price supports—high after the 1960 revolution—have been dashed by confusion in Prime Minister John Chang's government and among the politicians in Seoul.

It is said widely in Korea that the farmers, the bulk of South Korea's 23,000,000 population, are worse off than ever before. When rice crops are bad they are in deep poverty; when the crop is good the price falls.

Syngman Rhee, a power politician of the old school, had no illusions about the dangers latent in his army. As long as he was in control, he kept the military strictly out of politics and broke up every military clique he and his ever present national police agents could detect.

Commanders were constantly rotated. None was ever allowed to build up a following. Any general, Rhee thought had too many "political" ideas found himself ambassador to a distant post—or sent to the U.S. command and general staff school in Kansas.

HAD ARMY'S LOYALTY.

Rhee also commanded a genuine loyalty from the army. Age is venerated in the Orient, and there was no question that Rhee was the father of his country. Up to the last day he held power, his army would probably have attacked North Korea any time he gave the word.

It was not the army that toppled Rhee, but young students impatient for the old man to die. The army moved in, restored order, and helped set up a new civil government. Now, the only remaining solid and stable force in South Korea, it has overthrown that government.

What will the army do now? Obviously it wants a cleaner, more inspiring and more energetic regime. The generals and colonels may try it on their own—or they may set up another civilian government.

Whatever they do, the army will probably remain the centre of gravity in Korean politics. It was always there. But like an iceberg, most of it never showed.

About half the elementary schools in Jamaica are operated under church sponsorship, the remainder by the government.

Measles Kill 20 Children

MAGOG, Que. (CP)—An outbreak of measles has claimed the lives of some 20 children in a private institution for mentally retarded children near this community 85 miles southeast of Montreal.

The children, residents of the Cecil Butters Memorial Home at Austin, Que., died during a five-week period of encephalitis, an inflammation of the brain, which followed the measles epidemic.

The home, which cares for deformed and retarded children, many of whom have been rejected by other institutions, has a good reputation and many children have been placed there by the Montreal social welfare department.

Fifteen other stricken children were still in isolation, but were expected to recover.

Eighteen months ago, a similar outbreak resulted in the deaths of 10 children.

Disease Brought in by Visitors

Mrs. Lily Butters, superintendent of the home, said Monday everything possible had been done to save the children but the efforts were hampered by the fact that mentally retarded children have an extremely low resistance to disease.

Mrs. Butters said the measles were brought into the home by visitors.

"They are not supposed to go into certain parts of the home but someone apparently did when our backs were turned," she said.

The dead children, whose parents live in Montreal, Ontario and the Eastern Townships, ranged in age from two to 12 years.

Group Plans More 'Freedom Rides'

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—More "freedom rides" to test the speed of desegregation in the southern states were hinted today after an integrated group flew here safely to end an 11-day bus-plane trip in the south.

The integrationists' journey ended here shortly before 2 a.m. (EDT) but not before a violent reception in Alabama involving the beating of several persons and two bomb scares at Birmingham airport.

A throng of Negroes and some white persons greeted the 17 members of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) at Municipal airport.

Almost as large was the group of uniformed police and plain-clothesmen which swarmed through the terminal, warding off any threat of another night of violence.

Dr. Walter Bergman, a 61-year-old white former professor at Michigan State, and a member of the travelling CORE unit, said the group found "absolutely no compliance" to desegregation.

"We have been searching for a degree of compliance in the south—the deep south—as far as interstate travelling is concerned."

Bergman hinted that future "freedom rides" would be held after saying that the "trip was not a complete success because we did not go into Mississippi."

He said the CORE members got only "shoddy" police protection in Alabama, even after word of the beatings reached Washington.

Rev. B. Elton Cox, 29, a High Point, N.C., minister, said it is not live in the daily society any necessary to have federal aid longer," Cox said. "The people to end the 'agitations' against desegregation. The people of Tel Aviv, Moscow and other places will notice the disdain 'As a divided group we can in America'."

Subsidies for Ships

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT'S shipbuilding subsidies should provide some needed employment in this area and are perfectly timed, by an interesting coincidence, for the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election.

The government hopes that the shipbuilding industry of British Columbia, taking full advantage of the state's aid, will soon begin to flourish again after many lean years.

The industry has now received, as it has long demanded, the equivalent of the Canadian tariff protecting most Canadian manufactures. The principle of high tariff protection, already applied to the industries of central Canada, is now extended to the Pacific and Atlantic coasts. Shipping companies will be effectively discouraged from building their ships in Britain or foreign countries in favor of local labor and materials.

In simple terms Canada has decided to overcome its high cost of shipbuilding by paying the builders and workers forty per cent of their profits and wages out of the public treasury. The costs have not been reduced and perhaps will increase when the state so largely underwrites them. They have been transferred in substantial part to the taxpayers.

In the government's judgment the taxpayers will be glad to pay them in return for the creation of employment. In any case, the principle of subsidizing industry by one means or another already had been well established, indirectly by the tariff and directly for such enterprises as the railways.

The ultimate purpose of the government's policy is not yet clear and no doubt will be explained without delay. It is subsidizing the construction of ships but does it intend to re-build a Canadian ocean-going marine? This certainly was its original intention but, on coming to office, it immediately liquidated the remains of our deep-sea fleet because it could not compete, with its high operating costs, against foreign ships.

If Canada is now to re-enter the shipping business beyond its own coasts an operating subsidy, as well as a construction subsidy, will probably be required. Otherwise it would be no use building ocean-going ships. The government's intentions in this respect will be awaited with interest, especially in ports like Victoria and Vancouver.

The plan to employ Canadians in making their own ships goes much farther than subsidies to the shipbuilders. It also proposes to exclude British shipping from the internal commerce of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence Seaway.

By agreement with the British government British ships have been allowed to operate in this trade. The agreement is now to be abrogated, apparently without any advance notice to Britain.

A royal commission, after a lengthy investigation in 1957, firmly opposed the exclusion of British ships. It found that if this competition with Canadian ships were removed the cost of moving goods by the St. Lawrence Seaway system would be increased by about a third. Since the whole purpose of the huge investment in the Seaway was to reduce the cost of moving Canadian goods, the commission urged that British competition be maintained.

Additionally it must be remembered that Britain is Canada's second largest customer, and buys from us far more every year than we buy from it. The trade balance against Britain will be further increased by its loss of business in Canadian shipping. On top of our restrictions against British textiles and automobiles we are now about to deliver another serious blow to the British economy, and to its ability to buy Canadian goods.

Britain's reaction to this latest injury from Canada remains to be seen. The Canadian government has been warning Britain not to join the European Common Market and, through Mr. Fleming, has threatened to retaliate if it does so. Not satisfied with that warning, the Canadian government has begun retaliation in advance.

The results will be seen later in higher transportation costs for the Canadian economy, further damage to our competitive position in the world market, and perhaps in British retaliation against us.

At all events, Britain will hardly be impressed by Canada's objection to her trade policies when we obviously intend to take no account of her interests. Having decided on a policy of high protectionism, to be executed by many ingenious devices, the Canadian government is pressing its plans to a logical conclusion and the consequences of that old experiment, often tried before now, will appear in due course. And while Mr. Hees tells us every day that we must get our economic costs down or lose our foreign markets, the government is moving to push them up.

A Figure of Quiet Decency

ON THE EVENING OF APRIL 17, actor James Stewart spoke directly into the television camera, during the Oscar ceremonies, to tell his bed-ridden friend Gary Cooper, how proud he and other important people in the moving picture industry were of the ailing star.

It became apparent that Mr. Cooper's days were numbered. They came to an end Saturday—an end foreseen by Cooper and accepted with calm fortitude.

As tributes are paid to the man who made monosyllabic conversation a trademark—and with it an unassuming personality that endeared him to a world audience—occasion arises to note the characteristics which made him the friend of millions of theatre-goers.

He portrayed simple decency and courage. He created an image of wholesomeness in sharp contrast to the often questionable roles that Hollywood provides on the screen and in real life. He built a part of the American dream which can be universally appreciated. Whether he was a great actor or not, he touched a common chord recognized by all men and gave to it a sort of nobility.

For this he will be remembered.

Lesson in Bilingualism

CANADIANS WILL NOTE WITH appreciation the decision of President Kennedy to phrase some of his speech in French during his Ottawa visit.

This is a courtesy which all people of this country will recognize. It is unfortunate, however, that relatively few of the English-speaking listeners will be able to follow the distinguished visitor when he turns to the other tongue. Canada, though it has two official languages, is a long way from being bilingual, particularly in its western reaches.

Most English-speaking Canadians will not know how well the President handles himself in French. They will know, however, that he does infinitely better than they do.

La Creme de la Creme

PATRIOTISM, SELF-CONFIDENCE and pride can be very laudable virtues. But they need a background of established fact to be convincing.

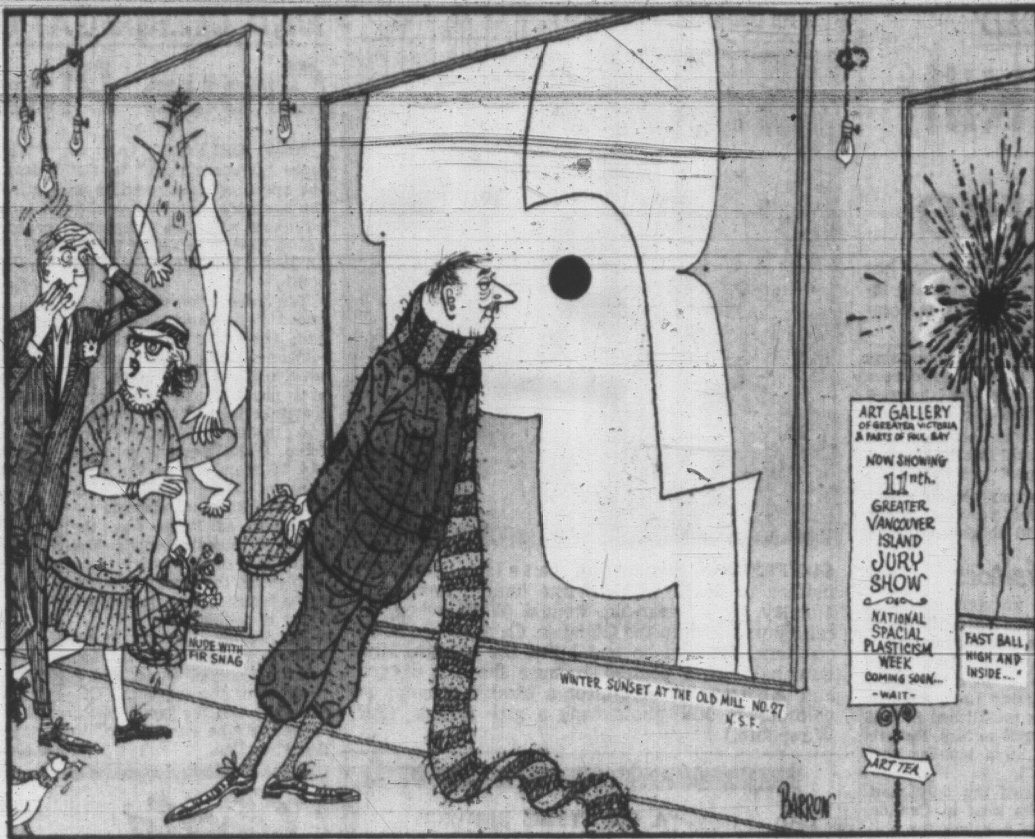

Trade Minister George Hees is on record with the statement that "Our people are more industrious and are smarter than the people of Western Europe or any other part of the world." That takes in a lot of territory and a lot of people.

It takes in the West Germans, who by their industry have rehabilitated their country from the ravages of war and placed it at the head of European industrial and commercial powers. It takes in the French, whose "smartness" whether in milady's fashions or more serious cultural achievement is pretty widely acknowledged. It takes in the Swiss, whose little country reflects a good deal of native industriousness and smartness. It takes in the people of the United Kingdom, who are no laggards in many forms of industriousness and whose mechanical and laboratory geniuses might fairly claim to be smart. It takes in the Americans, who are known in some quarters of the world for their achievements. It takes in the Russians, who are said to have made quite noticeable progress in several fields during the past generation or so. It takes in the Dutch and the Scandinavians, the Italians, Czechs and Poles, the Chinese, the Japanese and the Indians.

It takes in, in fact, the people in "any other part of the world" according to Mr. Hees.

Looking around at all these folk, and at what they have managed to do, we wonder if perhaps Mr. Hees isn't exaggerating just a teensy-weensy bit when he puts us at the top in all departments. Maybe it would be more modest to settle for world leadership in just one department. And we wonder what it is.

Grain of Truth: Mrs. Snifkin's Cold War

THE cold war of the world, I dare say, is bigger and more important than Mrs. Snifkin's war on mice but it is no more ruthless or colder. And certainly her enemy in this struggle, none other than Mr. Snifkin, could give lessons to the Communists in subtlety, duplicity and reckless terror.

Hutchison

As the only war correspondent fortunate enough to be stationed at the front, I have long given the reader detailed and accurate accounts of the shifting battle.

Mrs. Snifkin's mouse traps of every sort so far invented, her deadly poisons, her scorched earth strategy, and Mr. Snifkin's guerrilla tactics of secretly feeding the mice on chocolate bars because he happens to like them—this perpetual conspiracy of the Snifkins' summer cottage is well known to the public as a miniature of events in Cuba.

MRS. SNIFKIN, you might say, represents the Central Intelligence Agency. Mr. Snifkin (though he would be horrified to hear it) plays the part of Dr. Castro and, like him, has brilliantly succeeded up to now. But there is a grim sequel.

Last autumn, as the summer camp was closing, Mrs. Snifkin undertook her final campaign of extermination. All traps and ordinary poisons having failed, the cottage being still full of mice well fed on chocolate, Mrs. Snifkin imported a new remedy from a friend in Chicago. This latest triumph of chemistry was devised, I presume, by the scientists who invented the nuclear bomb. In any case, it was guaranteed to do for mice what man proposes to do later on to himself. No mouse could resist its temptation and none, once eating it, could survive.

At first sight Mr. Snifkin concluded that he was beaten; his little friends doomed. Then he observed that the improved poison was contained in ordinary kernels of grain, precisely like that used to feed the Snifkins' six elderly hens. A great light dawned on Mr. Snifkin, as he tells me in confidence, and he set about certain preparations.

When the cottage was being finally locked up Mrs. Snifkin looked around her with satisfaction and a hard glint in her eyes. Everywhere, on the mantel shelf, under the beds and especially on the mattresses, she had deployed her lethal weapons in china saucers. They held enough of the irresistible poison to exterminate all the mice on Vancouver Island. The invaders would never see another spring.

Thus the cabin was reopened by Mrs. Snifkin last weekend with high expectations that turned to exultation and a hoarse scream of triumph when she found all the saucers empty. The mice had eaten the forbidden fruit and had been driven from Eden.

Mr. Snifkin congratulated his wife with a false enthusiasm and discreetly withdrew to the distant wood pile. As he had expected, the scream of triumph turned to a fiercer scream of rage as Mrs. Snifkin made her spring inventory and found the unmistakable signs of mice everywhere. They had left their calling cards in all the cupboards, they had consumed Mrs. Snifkin's straw hat and bathing suit, they had used the stuffing from the mattresses to build their nests.

At that point Mrs. Snifkin denounced the fraudulent poison manufacturers of Chicago, repudiated modern science altogether and collapsed in tears over the ruins.

The sophisticated reader has guessed already the explanation of this disaster and I need not elaborate the obvious. Oddly enough, Mrs. Snifkin didn't guess it, perhaps because she has not yet realized the fathomless deceit of men. To imagine that Mr. Snifkin would fail to substitute unpoisoned for poisoned grain was to under-rate his intelligence but then, Mrs. Snifkin has always underrated him, just as the CIA underrated Dr. Castro.

NEVERTHELESS, there is always a price to pay for crime, even when it is innocent.

After a brief period of hysterics, Mrs. Snifkin fell into meditation while cleaning out her cupboards and may have hit on the truth with her womanly intuition. Of course she was too wise to argue. She merely bought a new supply of mattresses, at a cost of about $200, and ordered the bill sent to Mr. Snifkin.

He paid it without a word, knowing that argument was useless in this silent battle of giants, but he wonders if his humanitarianism is worth all the money he had intended to spend on a power saw to ease the labors of his old age. There will be no power saw at the Snifkin camp. Only mice and the giants in death grip all summer.

The Corridors Buzz With Election Rumors

ELECTION rumors are again swirling through the marble corridors of Parliament Hill. Every movement, every statement, is taken as a sign of an impending election or the improbability of an early election, depending on which case the interpreter has staked his money. As expected, the Senate figures in much of the discussion.

Gould

In the Upper Chamber, the atmosphere is electric, or as near to being electric as possible in the Senate. The Senators are so excited over events that they talked themselves into a division the other day—a recorded vote.

Although the subject was unimportant, the fact the Senate had a division is newsworthy in Ottawa. Some fears were expressed that Senate officials had forgotten the procedure to follow in a recorded vote, but they got through it fine.

The Senate is playing to full houses on the government's bill amending the Custom Tariffs Act, the most contentious issue to appear before Parliament this session.

The Liberal majority has decided to amend it, to remove a section that will give the minister of national revenue arbitrary powers—that will enable the minister to raise tariffs on a wide range of imported articles almost at will. "Dictatorial" is the way the Liberals describe the bill.

No Trouble

Up to now, Prime Minister Diefenbaker's legislative program has had little difficulty in the Senate. The denizens of the Red Chamber have amended a few bills, but the government accepted the amendments, and there was no further trouble.

This time it appears to be different. Senator William Brunt, a Toronto lawyer, whose roots in the Conservative party don't appear to be very deep, but who has managed to build up a close rapport with Mr. Diefenbaker, has told Liberal Senators that the government cannot accept amendments to the tariff bill.

In fact there is little Mr. Diefenbaker can do, apart from calling a federal general election. That's why Ottawa is stirred up.

Sensor Brunt's statement, taken alone, wouldn't mean much; it may have been a debating point, calculated to scare the Liberal Senators into backing down on their threat to amend the bill.

But a few other things were also happening. The Tory Toronto Telegram, on May 4, carried an editorial praising the Liberals in the Senate for their stand on the tariff bill. The Tory said Finance Minister Fleming had not convinced it that the minister needed arbitrary powers, patted the Liberals on the back, and told them to go to it. Four days later, on May 8, the Tory was on the streets again, with a fierce editorial criticizing the Liberals, and defending the legislation. A more abrupt about-face cannot be conceived.

Big Issue?

Did the Telegram's editors get the word from on high that this might be the "big issue," and that they had better get into time?

Then word started oozing out of Queen's Park that Premier Leslie Frost had the "word" from Mr. Diefenbaker: an election was going to be held within a matter of months.

Then there is the spectacle of the prime minister rushing about the nation, making speeches, trying one tack after another in a search for an election issue. He has so far tried such incompatible "issues" as free enterprise versus socialism, a New Canada (New Frontier?), gloom and doom versus rosy-hued optimism.

Incredible Blunder

Nothing so far has caught the public imagination.

Every amateur politician in Ottawa, and many professionals, think it would be an incredible blunder to go to the elections on a people's representatives-versus-the-Senate issue. It just wouldn't work, they say.

There is being built up an election atmosphere, and that is the usual prelude to an election. It is very difficult to stop election rumors (and in this case the government is spreading them); and once the country is in the mood for a vote, there is little political leaders can do to dispel that mood.

There is also a growing belief that the Prime Minister wants an election before the end of the year. If that be so, nothing can put it off.

WASHINGTON:

The Basic Issues

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IF, as is being said, there is a crisis in NATO, the issue is not the Atlantic Alliance itself, or any movement within NATO to surrender Berlin, and Germany and Europe.

The basic issues in NATO are strategy and command. Can the European members continue to rely for their defence upon the American nuclear deterrent under the command of the American President and an American general? Unless I am much mistaken, this will be the central subject of the serious discussions when President Kennedy visits President de Gaulle.

Lippmann

These discussions will not be easy, and it would be a great pity if the Administration built up any public expectation, which would almost certainly be false, that there are going to be settlements at Paris. The best that anyone has a right to hope for is that the two presidents will reach a preliminary understanding of each other, and can therefore lay the foundations for those changes in the strategy and structure of NATO which are necessary.

If I understand the problem after a number of careful talks in Paris, it is the consequence of the change in the balance of power since the Soviet Union achieved nuclear parity.

The NATO strategic doctrines antedates this historic change. The NATO military establishment, which was founded under Gen. Eisenhower and is now commanded by Gen. Norstad, has been regarded as the "shield." It was to hold the Red Army at bay while the United States wielded the decisive weapon, which was then our monopoly, the "sword" which is the nuclear strategic air force.

This strategic conception has been radically undermined by the Soviet nuclear missile forces. The most authoritative European view is that since the Soviet Union is now capable of inflicting prohibitive damage on the United States, and absolute damage on the small European countries, the automatic collective defence, which NATO pre-supposes, cannot be counted upon.

French View

The French view, which is merely more articulate than that of the other Europeans, is that if nuclear war begins, no nation will commit suicide if it can escape it. An American president cannot be expected to sacrifice Chicago for Lyons or New York for Paris.

This is the root of the French insistence upon having their own deterrents. They do not pretend that they can deter attack anywhere except against French cities. Rightly or wrongly, the French intend to have this nuclear power under their own command, not under the American president's command, the nuclear power to be able to destroy two or three Soviet cities if French cities are threatened.

I shall be very astonished if the President can argue Gen. de Gaulle out of this view, or if he can induce him to alter it by any device for a collective control of missiles by NATO which leaves the ultimate and fateful decision in the United States.

This is the crux of the problem. But, of course, it is not the whole problem. There is the exceedingly important French insistence that in great affairs throughout the world — the Formosa Strait, Indo-China, Iran, The Congo, Cuba — policy should be made by French-British-American agreement, and not unilaterally by the United States.

Though I tried hard to understand just what this means, I am not sure I do. I am not sure how much of it is an appeal for consultation, which is so necessary and so desirable, and how much of it conceals the principle of unanimous agreement, that is to say, the veto.

It is true that in the field of political consultation, the Kennedy administration has done better than its predecessor, and that communication between the two governments, both in Washington and in Paris, is happily, much more open. But it would be misleading to say that the atmosphere is as cordial as it needs to be, or that trust and confidence between the two governments have not in recent years been seriously impaired.

Great Disagreement

Seen from our side, the reason for this has been, of course, the great disagreement with Gen. de Gaulle over the military structure of NATO and over the independent French nuclear bomb.

Seen from the French side, there is not only a general sense of grievance that France, as compared with Great Britain, has been ignored. There is not only a firm conviction that President Eisenhower broke his promise to support France in Algeria, and instructed our delegation to abstain in the United Nations.

There are also uglier irritations of which I shall with some discretion cite two examples that I have verified.

There is a specific case where an American manufacturer of missiles has been allowed to give to the Germans, but prohibited from giving to the French, highly secret—although non-nuclear—technical information. This kind of thing is poisonous in an alliance, and there is reason to hope that it and similar cases are being studied and will be reformed.

The other case is very delicate because it involves the CIA, which is so generally beleaguered. But the people have a right to know this.

The reason why the French government has not really excused the CIA of encouraging the Algerian rebel generals is that it was already so angry with the CIA for meddling in French internal politics. The French grievance, justified or not, has to do with recent French legislation for the French nuclear weapon, and the alleged effort of CIA agents to interfere with that legislation.

The President will need to know about these things before he goes to Paris.

Tourist at Home

THE new leaf on the copper birch next door shines in almost translucent bronze when the sun catches it. A few feet distant, a white May lifts a majestic cloud of cream blossoms.

Across the road our discarded California poppies and marigold are climbing up the hillside, no doubt to plague some exacting gardener in seasons to come.

On an island we visited last weekend, fields of camas lent a blue background to the pink of thrift growing above moss.

These are sights you notice when you have time. Unfortunately we seldom make time enough to enjoy them. We're too busy getting to work or getting home to dinner and the chores. We're too rushed, getting out to this event or that, to visit friends or to entertain them.

Yet, if we were visitors, coming here from almost any part of the world, we'd make time to savor the picture created by trees in new leaf and new bloom. We'd insist on the right to stand and stare at a field of camas lifting its blue above the thrift.

We'd return to distant homes and tell our friends of the magnificence of a copper birch or hawthorne, of fields of wild flowers we had seen in our travels.

It's just possible to overcome the handicap of environmental blindness which comes with the familiarity of living here—and I think I have the prescription. In a week or two we expect a favorite relative to visit us. He is coming to Canada and this part of it for the first time. During his stay we intend to show him the country hereabouts. Conceivably we'll be tourists at home ourselves.

It's a shocking thing to admit, but a man can live almost all his life here and never get up to Campbell River. He can consider himself a bred-in-the-bone admirer of his own hunk of the nation and never have been to Salt Spring. He can take the ferry from Swartz Bay and be as ignorant as a newcomer from far places about the islands he passes.

The way to cure that, of course, is to show somebody around.

Sometime during the next month or two we'll be piling into the car and heading up-Island for another look at Englishman's River Falls, at Little Qualicum, perhaps at Stamp Falls and Sproat Lake.

Probably we'll get further north and see some of the forest I hope is still standing above Parksville, but on which I haven't laid eyes for a decade or so.

We'll run out to Sooke and take another look at the Potholes, favorites when we were youngsters. We'll spend an afternoon at Butchart's. And because our guest is English, we'll drive some evening along the Old West Road, which comes as close as anything I know to the lovely roads that meander through some parts of south England.

Sure, we'll spend a fair amount of time at Shawnigan too. But this summer Shawnigan won't be our mistress as it has been in previous years. For variety we'll focus our eyes on a few other beauty spots we talk about when we're away from home. And just possibly we'll be able to find an unspoiled part of the Highlands where we fished for small trout when we were kids.

The prospect is pleasant. It's time I looked at something other than the white line in the centre of the highway. It's past time for me to draw off the road and just gaze a while at the things I've taken for granted too long.

The Island can stand a lot of staring at. We just don't seem to take the trouble to look, in the ordinary course of events. We catch a glimpse of dogwood flashing by on the way to Goldstream. We see a haze of woods in the poet's "mist of green." We have fleeting impressions that there is beauty here. The project this summer is to firm up those fleeting impressions, to make them indelible by a little concentrated gazing.

'Stay and Face Whatever Comes'

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—Two major Sunday newspapers and leading personalities pleaded with South African whites "not to flee this country in panic" in fear of new racial violence at the end of this month.

"People should stay and face whatever is coming," declared Dave Marais, mayor of Johannesburg.

"I am prepared to see out the terrible struggle I foresee," said anti-segregationist author Alan Paton.

They and other leaders gave these "stand fast" appeals to the Johannesburg Sunday Express in an attempt to counter a rush of whites emigrating to Australia and elsewhere. The Express backs these interviews with an editorial titled "No Need to Panic."

The Express' sister paper, the Johannesburg Sunday Times, features an article by Leslie Blackwell, former supreme court judge, urging English-speaking South Africans to stay even if they find it unpleasant living in a new South African republic ruled by Afrikaner Nationalists and excluded from the Commonwealth.

The Express reports sea bookings alone indicate 2,500 South African whites will leave this year for Australia. AUTHOR PLANS TO STAY Paton, whose passport was confiscated and cancelled in January after he criticized the South African government's racial policies abroad, told The Express.

"I hate only Apartheid. I am prepared to see out the terrible struggle I foresee. I know the danger of a clash between Afrikaner Nationalism and African Nationalists, but I know there are many forces operating against both."

Three-day work strikes and country-wide protest demonstrations have been called by leaders of the non-white majority for May 29 to 31.

The protests are aimed against the new South African republic, which will be inaugurated May 31.

Immigration Alarms U.K.

LONDON (Reuters)—The British government is facing continuing pressure to deal with sharply increased immigration from Commonwealth countries—particularly the West Indies.

Cabinet ministers are concerned about the effects, particularly in producing housing problems and over-crowding in certain areas.

But sources say the government has no intention of introducing legislation to curb it in the present session of Parliament which continues until late fall.

They say there would be the greatest reluctance to take any steps conflicting with Britain's traditional "open door" policy toward Commonwealth and colonial citizens.

They rule out the possibility of any action discriminatory of race or color. If any controls are eventually applied they will be general to all immigration, the sources say.

There have been speculative press reports that there is potential conflict at cabinet level on how the immigration problem should be handled.

EXAMINE PROBLEM

But political sources point out that the problem has to be looked at in relation to any possible future British association with the six-nation common market, where the principle of free movement of labor among member countries applies.

The Sunday Dispatch, a Conservative newspaper, said the cabinet has clamped down a ban on Conservative members of Parliament who are campaigning against immigration of Negroes from the West Indies and other Commonwealth countries.

"The gag gives new impetus to the storm building up in the Conservative party," it said. The newspaper said Conservative members of Parliament were told secretly that the cabinet will not curb immigration for at least a year but anti-

FATE OF BALTIC COUNTRIES SET U.S., BRITAIN AT ODDS

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States vehemently opposed Britain's demands for postwar control over the Baltic countries.

When Stalin became aware of the American position, Russia dropped its demands. This did not prevent the Soviet Union from occupying and keeping Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania after Germany's defeat.

Diplomatic papers released by the state department during the weekend threw new light on the issue of control of the Baltic, a much debated and heated topic among the Big Three in 1942.

At the time, Germany held a great part of European Russia, including the three small states. The question was whether the countries should become independent or be incorporated by Russia in the event of German defeat.

British willingness to permit Russia to hold the Baltics, U.S. Secretary of State Welles wrote in a memorandum, was "indefensible from every moral standpoint." In fact, he wrote, the British were "extraordinarily stupid."

"What peace could be envisaged if at this early stage in the war the British government and ourselves agreed upon selling out millions of people?" Welles asked.

His memorandum was addressed to Adolf A. Barle Jr., then an assistant secretary of state. Barle now is President Kennedy's adviser on Latin American affairs.

Welles' memorandum was based on his discussions with the Earl of Halifax, British ambassador to the United States. The British envoy,

Welles wrote, "evidenced the worst phase of the spirit of Munich."

On the British side, Prime Minister Churchill at first disagreed with Stalin's demands. However, Anthony Eden, his foreign minister, and such influential members of his official family as Sir Stafford Cripps, British ambassador to Moscow, and Halifax, persuaded him to comply with the Russian request.

After Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov visited Washington in June, 1942, he realized that the United States would not agree to Russia's demands. The Baltics issue then was quietly omitted from the Anglo-Russian pact.

The United States still does not recognize Russian rule over the Baltic states, which are republics within the Soviet Union.

Spiraeas — 'Mixed Up' Shrubs

The most mixed-up spring flowering shrubs are the spiraeas (spi-ree-ah) as far as the home gardener is concerned, possibly because of the so-called florists' spiraeas which is botanically the astilbe.

The spiraeas referred to here are woody shrubs, varying in shape of leaf, color of leaf and color and arrangement of blossoms.

The first to bloom, sometimes during the last weeks of winter, is Spiraea thunbergi or Thunberg's spiraea. The blooms are over now and the plants are rich with narrow, feathery leaves which turn orange-scarlet in fall.

Height of this one is five feet or so with white flowers along the slender arching branches.

Van Houtte's spiraea, Spiraea Vanhouttei, is the popular Bridal Wreath. With us it is just coming into bloom although in milder areas it should be near full. It is a hybrid which resembles one of its parents more than the other, having a marked tendency to the three-lobed leaves of Spiraea lobata, although more showy and floriferous.

In height it is usually a little smaller than Thunberg's, and the white flowers are in clusters along the stems.

While some spiraeas of borderline hardness will be found in sheltered local gardens, the next in popularity is the late summer flowering Spiraea bumalda, a hybrid with flowers from white, through pinks, into crimson, of which the variety Anthony Waterer and Froebel are probably best known.

The crimson flowers and bronzy foliage of variety Anthony Waterer, coupled with its airy, but low growth, makes it an adaptable plant for accent in many and varied locations.

Other plants commonly referred to as spiraeas are the Rock-spiraea (Holodiscus discolor), the False-spiraea (genus Sorbaria), and the Blue-spiraea (Caryopteris incana).

Regardless of the mix-up in names, the true spiraeas are worth a place in the garden because of their ease of culture, their showiness when in bloom, and their foliage when the blooming season has passed.

SYNOPSIS — This morning skies continued sunny along most of the B.C. coast although on the outer-coast patches of fog and low cloud were reported in some sections. In the interior on the other hand considerable cloud has spilled across the Rockies from a storm area over Alberta. This cloud cover remained variable during the day and some showers were expected over ridges.

The ridge of high pressure that has brought the fine weather is weakening slowly and for Wednesday it is likely that a little more cloud will be present in coastal areas but gradual clearing will take place in the interior.

Provincial Grants Asked

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Chamber of Commerce in annual convention Monday recommended a thorough reappraisal of the financial relationships between municipalities and the province.

The recommendation is aimed at curtailing demands on local governments for aid to provincial services.

The recommendation, part of a policy statement, also suggests the province make grants in lieu of taxes to all municipalities in which provincial buildings, sites, works and so on are located.

In a resolution listing a number of highway projects, delegates urged Highways Minister Gagliardi to draw up a list of highway and bridge projects for development in 10-year cycles and establish priority rating for each major bridge or highway project.

Members also voted in favor of the export of surplus electric power and removal of 0.3 mill federal export tax on power crossing into the United States.

At Buying Cars Convention Told

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—Canadian car buyers are on something of a strike, says Howard B. Moore, executive vice-president of the Federation of Automobile Dealer Associations of Canada.

"There is," Mr. Moore told the convention of B.C. motor dealers here Saturday, "an attitude that the old bus can run another year."

"Automobiles are not quite so important as they used to be. Nowadays people consider boats and swimming pools as status symbols."

TODAY'S GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Flax prices showed an easier tone in moderately active trading on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

The declines were blamed on lower linseed oil prices abroad and price decreases on the Chicago soybean market.

ADDITIONAL FLOAT FOR HARBOR

One additional finger float will be added to the public float in front of the causeway in the Inner Harbor this summer, as the result of an agreement reached Monday between city engineer James Garnett and members of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce harbor and transportation group.

In addition, four buoys will be relocated to provide mooring facilities for four yachts up to 65 feet in length. The yachts will be moored stern to the float with the bows secured to the buoys.

Mr. Garnett told the group that the engineering department estimate of $4,500 for extension of the float along the lines requested by the Chamber of Commerce had been cut by one-third by city council.

He suggested three alternative plans for utilizing the $3,000 budgeted for improvement. The meeting decided that construction of the additional finger on the south end of the float along with the buoy relocation would provide the best initial phase of a development program for the float.

Mr. Garnett also commented on the city's program of Inner Harbor cleaning and told the meeting that this too was a dollar and cents proposition. Tenders for various cleaning proposals had ranged from $200 to $5,000 and for reasons of economy the lowest tender was accepted. This provided cleaning from June 15 to Sept. 15. Extension of the cleaning season, he added, would be quite costly.

Cheerless Budget Forecast

The new Canadian budget is being delayed until after the May 29 Esquimalt-Saanich by-election because it won't contain any "cheer," the Liberal party's financial critic said Monday.

William Benidickson, MP for Kenora-Rainy River was addressing a meeting of 42 people in Tillicum School on behalf of Liberal candidate David Groos.

"I don't know what this new budget is going to bring down," said Mr. Benidickson. "But I'm certain that if it was going to give the electors of this country, either in this by-election or the three others, anything to cheer about, we would have got this budget before May 29."

Finance Minister Donald Fleming said in Ottawa Monday the budget will not come down until after the end of the month.

But Mr. Benidickson did make one budget prediction: that the deficit will be at least $700,000,000, as forecast by the Canadian Tax Foundation.

He said he figured that Canada's debt is $160 for each person. Since coming to power in 1957, the Conservatives have totted up an extra $1,400,000,000 in debt; have virtually "blown" the entire $900,000,000 unemployment insurance fund and wiped out $235,000,000 of the defence equipment fund.

Mr. Benidickson said the interest on Canada's debt now totals $219,000,000 more than it did in 1957, and works out to $10.50 for every working man.

He said that while the Conservatives at first appeared to be handing out benefits, they really were reaping more than they sowed.

"This government are Indiangivers," he said.

In order to keep a 1957 election promise, the government increased old-age pensions by $9 a cost to the country of $100,000,000 a year. Yet, afterwards, said Mr. Benidickson, the government slapped a 1 per cent increase on income tax, on corporation tax and on sales tax, which brings in $197,000,000 a year.

"For every dollar being paid out extra by the old-age security fund, they are taking $2," said the Liberal MP.

Special Assize Called
WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench has granted an application by the Crown for a special assize opening in Brandon June 5 to hear the case of Hugh Paton and D. Hubert Cox, charged with conspiracy to steal $460,000 from Brandon Packers Limited, of which they are principal owners.

Three stately elm trees bordering the Douglas Street side of Thunderbird Park were cut down and removed at the weekend.

Deputy Works Minister Arnold Webb said they were removed to safeguard the totems. Saplings have been planted in their place.

The well-known trees had been seriously weakened by damage to their roots during excavation for underground wiring. This was discovered after an elm was toppled by wind.

The Ontario Social Group of Victoria will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. at 1400 Broad Street.

Soviet to Protect Citizens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A secret study shows that Russia is spending from $500,000,000 to $1,500,000,000 yearly on fallout shelters. It is believed "the great majority" of Russians would be protected from radiation in a nuclear war.

Frank B. Ellis, director of

No mail will be delivered on May 22, Victoria Day, and provincial government offices will be closed for the holiday, but not all vital services will be cut off.

Stamp wickets in the post office will be open from 10 a.m. till noon that day, and the provincial museum will be open all over the weekend.

the office of civil and defence mobilization, told a House appropriations subcommittee about the study in testimony when he asked for funds to build fallout shelters in U.S. government buildings.

Ellis said most deaths in a nuclear attack would result not from blast and heat but from resulting radioactive fallout, depending on wind and weather conditions. He said most people would have time to take shelter if it were available.

'Cabinet Ministers Hide'

Federal cabinet ministers supposedly helping Conservative George Chatterton are being kept under wraps—away from public questions—Liberal David Groos charged Monday.

"By the end of this week there will have been five cabinet ministers out here and as far as I know only one has appeared on a public platform," he told an Esquimalt-Saanich by-election meeting at Tillicum School.

Citizenship Minister Ellen Fairclough attended a tea and made some statements, said Mr. Groos. Justice Minister E. Davie Fulton "had his picture taken in a field with the candidate" and also made some statements.

Trade Minister George Hees and Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton are coming this week. They are appearing at "receptions," said Mr. Groos.

"And you need an invitation to get in."

"Some of the Liberal people would like to see these MPs and ask them a few questions about what's going on," said Mr. Groos.

'Non-Nuclear Club'

Canada should form a new "non-nuclear club," Liberal David Groos proposed Monday.

"I'll bet you we would get a lot of response," he told an Esquimalt-Saanich by-election campaign meeting in Tillicum School.

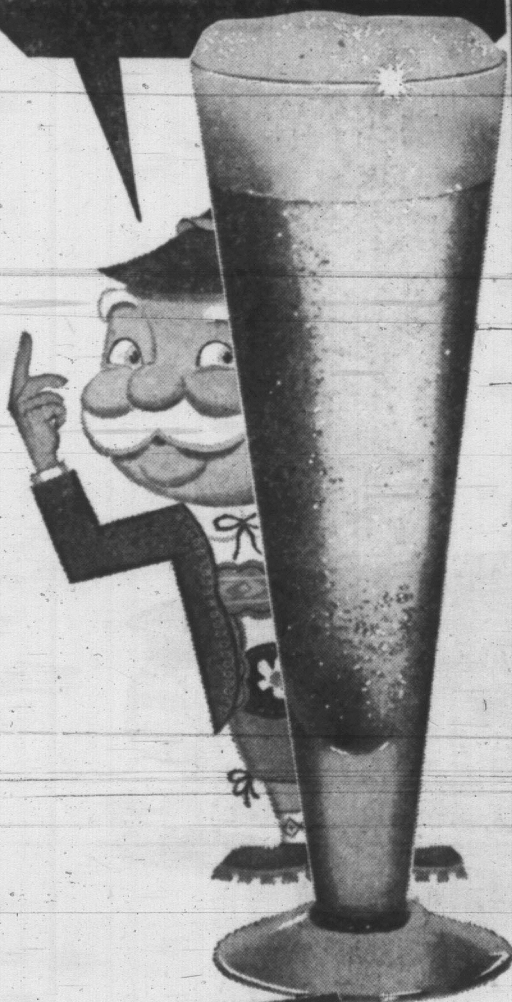

There are several undecided nations who could be influenced to join and prevent the spread of nuclear weapons, he said.

"If we can get all the middle-size countries into it, it's going to mean a better chance that the four countries who now have the H-bomb can come to an agreement."

"And we are going to reduce the likelihood of accidental war," said Mr. Groos.

Indians Watch Barge Launched

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A member of a famous Indian family of canoe builders gave his blessings to the world's largest self-loading and unloading log barge at Yarrows Ltd. Monday.

"She is built like a war canoe, but is many thousands of times bigger," said 81-year-old Robert Davidson, a Haida Indian, as he watched the giant $3,000,000 barge slip down the ways.

He and his wife from Massett, at the northern shore of the Queen Charlotte Islands, were invited to attend the launching ceremony of the Haida Carrier, built by Yarrows for MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd.

The elderly Indian, clad in a cherry-red ceremonial robe and wearing the traditional headdress of the Haida tribe, was struck with awe by the massiveness of the all-steel vessel.

His wife, wearing a gorgeous beaded cape, also gazed in wonderment at the barge which will carry 1,500,000 board feet of logs—more than any vessel of its kind in the world.

"She is like a spirit canoe," he said as he examined the vessel before launching. "She is welcome to the shores of the Queen Charlotte Islands."

Later when Mr. Davidson addressed some 200 guests at the launching ceremony, he told them that the word Haida meant "command."

"The vessel is well named," he said, "and I trust she will remain long in service."

Mr. Davidson, in his youth, built canoes which sailed many miles out to sea in search of whales and seals. And like his forbears, he was a skilled boatman, having once paddled a small canoe from the Queen Charlottes to Juneau, Alaska.

It was the first white man's launching ceremony Mr. Davidson and his wife had ever attended. It differed widely from those held by Indians on completion of a canoe either for battle or for hunting.

Instead of breaking a bottle on the bow of a canoe, the braves took part in rigid religious exercises, mainly expressed in the form of dances. They also drank a brew made of devil's club bark, and even bathed in it.

The launching ceremony lasted four weeks, and during this period no woman was allowed near the braves. It was strictly a "stag party."

The purpose of the canoe ritual was to purify the builders and to ensure spiritual protection for the boat and its paddlers, who were dependent on the sea for food for their bands.

BLAST AT RED WHALER DENIED

THE HAGUE (AP)—The Dutch defence ministry today denied that a Dutch military plane fired on a Soviet whaling ship but said one plane engaged in exercises fired rockets at "a great distance" from a busy North Sea shipping lane and "in a safe direction."

The Soviet Union protested the "hostile and provocative action" of a Dutch plane that "opened cannon fire on a Soviet whaling ship Friday and narrowly missed her with three shells."

HELP CANADA COUNT

Welcome your Census Taker

In June, Census Takers will ask questions of you and all other residents of Canada. Your answers, combined with those of others, will produce facts vitally important in guiding the development of Canada's future—in planning schools, hospitals, public utilities, farm and industrial production.

The Census is an enormous task undertaken once every ten years. Only with the co-operation of every Canadian can it be done quickly and accurately.

All information you give is kept in strict confidence. By law, every person must answer the Census questions but the answers can be used only by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics for the preparation of statistics. Information about individuals cannot be disclosed to any other government department or agency, private organization or individual.

An accurate Census benefits us all. When the Census Taker calls at your home, please welcome him and HELP CANADA COUNT!

William Head Supervisor Dies in East

One of the world's foremost authorities on leprosy, Dr. Chester P. Brown, former superintendent of the William Head Quarantine Station, died Monday in Ottawa. He was 77.

Born in Paris, Ont., in 1884, Dr. Brown took his medical degree at Toronto University, and came to Victoria in 1914 as assistant superintendent of the William Head Station, leaving in 1916 to join the Canadian Army.

After the war he was stationed at Partridge Island Quarantine Station off New Brunswick until 1922, when he returned to William Head as superintendent. Stationed there for 11 years, he carried on extensive research into the cause of and cure of leprosy at William Head and also at the leprosaria on Bentinck and D'Arcy Islands.

Appointed head of the federal government's quarantine service in 1933, Dr. Brown was transferred to Ottawa, where he retired seven years ago.

Surviving are the widow, Mary, 73 Marlow Crescent, Ottawa, a son, Dr. Ira Brown of Ottawa, and three grandchildren.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP)—Three Communist Chinese agents were ordered to leave Uruguay within 24 hours. The action came as reliable sources reported the government may soon demand that Communist countries slash the big staffs of their embassies here.

VICTIM FACES, DENOUNCES EICHMANN

'Block of Ice,' Pulsing Hatred

(Times News Service)

JERUSALEM — A German clergyman who felt the Nazi whip confronted Adolf Eichmann in court today and called him a "block of ice" beneath which pulsed "demoniacal hate."

Dean Heinrich Grueber, 69-year-old Berlin Lutheran minister, testified he tried to help the Jews with frequent visits to Eichmann's gestapo office from 1939 to 1943.

"He never said yes to anything," the cleric said.

"Always he said either 'no' or kept the question in the air."

Dean Grueber was himself sent to Dachau concentration camp by Eichmann in 1943 and underwent physical tortures. Nevertheless, the clergyman apologized to the defendant for calling him names, saying, "I hope the accused doesn't mind, I do not come here out of revenge or hatred."

The witness said that in contrast to Eichmann, he found

But of Eichmann, he said, feeling anything at all. His "I had the impression of a name became a sad symbol... man who sat there like a oblivious to the call of justice block of ice or marble, not and his own conscience."

Derby Pattern Altered But Target is the Same

THE SCOREBOARD BY Harry Grayson

NEW YORK (NEA)—The New York Athletic Club isn't the kind of place where guys go around slapping each other on the back. They recline stuffily on their pads in the mist-filled steam room wrapped in stock market quotations.

But the other day a huge guy with a gnarled face and snaggle-toothed smile broke up the joint. All Primo Carnera did was wrap his big paw around anybody who came within 10 feet of the rubbing table and smile gently but infectiously.

"Hello, Buddy."

Everybody was "Buddy." Like to Babe Ruth, everybody was "Kid." For one night, the rich men of the AC were gathered up like a bunch of kids before one of the unique athletic figures of the last two generations. Primo was in town.

Up close, with huge feet, enormous jaw, craggy features, Carnera is semi-grotesque. But he is not the Carnera of semi-fiction, the bumbling Alpine ogre who was a mere simple pawn of greedy hoodlums, left sobbing childlike on a bed a quarter century ago, a broken hulk.

Da Preem, former heavyweight champion of the world, both boxing and wrestling divisions, is a man with sparkle and congeniality in Manhattan's finest Italian restaurant and he can engage in the coarse repartee of dressing rooms. He speaks a heavily-accented English with a broad "a" picked up a long time ago in London.

But the overriding facet of his personality is his warmth. Primo has been a wrestler for the last 15 years. For 12 months of every year he travels the breadth of the land—and Asia and Australia, too—wrestling up to five times a week in big cities and small towns, for varying pay-days. In the caste system of the mat, he now plays the "good guy," and he grins like he's having a good time.

There is no bitterness in Primo over the 1930s when the mobsters squeezed him and left him to return to Italy without a dime.

"Boxing," he says, "taught me a lot of things—about life."

He has a home in California. His daughter goes to high school in Los Angeles and his son, Umberto, out of the service, is at UCLA, where Primo says he'll be trying out as a tackle on the Bruin varsity.

"Not being like de old man," he laughs, "but enough. He's 62 and 230."

Primo's weight has fluctuated from the 340 he weighed as a circus freak in France to the gaunt 200 he scaled when he returned to this country in 1946, freed from digging ditches for the Germans. Now he's right in between at 288, a normal figure for his 6 feet, 6½ inches.

Not too long ago, we caught up to him in a dressing room at Miami Beach. You could tell he was 54. Gray sprinkled his hair, and the skin hung limply over loose muscles as he sagged on a stool, waiting for his cue to go on.

Nearby, Eddie Graham, his tag partner, vigorously did push-ups across a couple of chairs. Primo just sat, chatting. When the guy poked his head in the room, Primo stood up and the years dropped away as he extended his enormous chest. The muscles did a taut dance. Primo slipped on a dark blue robe with wide red lapels.

"You look," said Furman Bisher of Atlanta, "like a tent."

Primo raised a big paw in a threat, "You watch that, Buddy," he boomed in basso.

On his face was that cockeyed smile.

The format may be changed but the target in the annual Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association ladder derby will be the same as ever. Anglers will still be chasing big salmon.

And the advance guard of the usual mid-May run of tackle-testing salmon appears to have hit the inlet just in time to give promise of an interesting start to the ladder scramble.

Tackle has taken a bit of a beating in Saanich Inlet waters during the past few days as the first consistent action by husky fish resulted in several tales of smashed lines and lost lures.

However, not all the big ones got away. Tony Rosin boated a 20½-pounder last Wednesday. Mel Lohr, after having three salmon break away, came in at Hall's Boathouse Friday with a 21½-pound spring, and Mrs. Ann Rendle brought a 20-pound 3-ounce salmon back to Brentwood Saturday. Monday morning it was Ron Bentley, who connected, hooking a 21½-pounder in Misery Bay.

A fair number of smaller salmon are also hitting lures at the inlet and a few bluebacks are still around.

Those are the prospects for anglers who plan to get in on the first round of the annual ladder derby, which starts Saturday morning.

This year the derby will be a continuing 10-week contest instead of a series of weekly competitions.

BERTHS FOR 200

In past years the ladder scramble has been drawn up to qualify 40 anglers each week, making a total of 400 eligible to compete in the final fish-off scheduled this summer on August 20. This time only 200 anglers will make it to the fish-off and the qualifying berths will go to the entrants weighing in the 200 largest salmon, taken at any time during the derby. Nobody can get knocked off the ladder until the 200th rung is filled.

Possession of a derby entry ticket will enable an angler to weigh in as many fish as he or she wishes during the derby. Formerly, entrants were required to surrender an entry ticket with each salmon weighed in. Contestants must also possess a VSIAA membership ticket.

One type of weekly contest will be retained. Trophies will be awarded to the fishermen entering the largest salmon each week. And, as members of the VSIAA, derby entrants will be eligible to win the cash prizes up for grabs each month during the summer.

In keeping with the VSIAA program to assist in conservation by reducing the value of derbies, the ladder chairman, George Crombie, has announced that the prize list has been reduced along with costs of competing.

Top prize in the fish-off will be a 7½-h.p. outboard motor. Other prizes will be announced at a later date.

That's the way things stand for Saturday's opening and now Crombie is hoping for a steady showing of big salmon—the main ingredient for a successful derby.

Horse Players May Die Broke But Not Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Horse players may all die broke but the federal government makes a neat profit from its supervision of pari-mutuel betting at Canadian tracks, Justice Minister Fulton disclosed Monday.

The minister, piloting through the Commons Criminal Code amendments on horse racing, said the government was paid $673,000 in 1959-60 for the RCMP's services on tracks where betting is held. After expenses, the balance in favor of the government was between $118,000 and $120,000.

The amendments allow associations sponsoring horse racing meets flexibility in the 14 days of racing they are allowed each calendar year. At present, the associations are permitted one meeting of 14 consecutive days or two meetings of seven days each. Under the amendments, the two meetings can be of any duration provided that together they do not exceed 14 days.

The number of races and heats in each harness racing day also is limited to 10. At present combinations of heats and dashes can reach 12. Jockey or running races are left unchanged at eight races a day.

APPROVED IN PRINCIPLE
The amendments were given second reading—approval in principle—and then cleared clause-by-clause committee study.

Liberal Leader Pearson said his party would not oppose the bill but several CCF members recorded differing views.

Erhart Regier (CCF—Burnaby-Coquitlam) said the amendments would make horse racing more lucrative for the promoters. Canadians were being "led down the garden path" in horse racing, bingo and other forms of gambling.

"I LIKE TO GAMBLE"
Frank Howard (CCF—Skeena) said the amendments "smack of state control."

W. C. Henderson (PC—Cariboo) defended racing "as a real nice pastime."

"I don't drink but I like to gamble," the 71-year-old MP said. "I never saw a race meeting where the people starved."

Wild Paces Field In Bicycle Event
Bill Wild and Marilyn Burley finished first in their respective races Sunday in Victoria Cycling Club's 12.5-mile North Saanich race.

Wild covered the distance in 32 minutes, 36 seconds. Second was Don Rosenberg, third was Ken Hay. Miss Burley's time was 37.8.

Kirk Kirby won the junior boys' race. Junior girls' event went to Carol Hay.

SAN FRANCISCO—Al Medrano, 136, Sacramento, Calif., outpooled Harry Campbell, 181, San Jose, Calif., 10.

NEW DERBY FAVORITE

LONDON (AP)—The American-owned Moutiers became the favorite for the Derby Monday night after Britain's big hope, Pinturischio, came down with a stomach upset. The race is run May 31.

Leading bookmakers made Moutiers an 8-to-1 shot at a call-over. Pinturischio was made second favorite at 9 to 1. He headed the list at 6 to 1 a week ago.

Pinturischio was "discovered" to have a temperature early Monday and was withdrawn from the Dante Stakes at York Tuesday.

Island Players Tested Tonight

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's young Theatre de la Sauciere was the first of eight groups to enter the competitive fray Monday when the 1961 Dominion Drama Festival opened before a glittering first-night audience at the Comedie Canadienne.

The Montreal group's presentation of Mademoiselle Jaire, a four-act serio-comedy by contemporary Belgian author Michel de Ghelderode, was a visual treat. With setting and costumes in Flemish renaissance style, the play suggested a series of period paintings come to life.

Adjudicator Michel St. Denis, a French drama authority, praised the decor but was more critical of the cast for its elocution.

He said the 20-member cast made a bold attempt to perform a difficult play but generally failed to do justice to the text, "which has many beautiful lines."

The week-long national festival was officially opened by Lieutenant-Governor Onesime Gagnon of Quebec.

The first English-speaking group to be seen in this year's festival, the Lake Cowichan, B.C., Drama Club, will present The Three Cuckolds tonight. It is a modern adaptation of a 16th century Italian comedy.

Fourteen prizes are at stake in the festival, sponsored this year by the Canadian Association of Broadcasters.

Burns Follow Ashes Rite Aboard Boat

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver woman was burned when a pleasure boat exploded off Spanish Banks here Sunday, shortly after the ashes of her deceased husband had been spread at sea.

Treated in hospital after being pulled from the water by three men in a passing boat was Mrs. Geraldine Lee. She suffered second degree leg and wrist burns.

Three other people, boat owner John Berwick, 21, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Doerges of Hope, were not injured in the explosion and fire which destroyed the 24-foot inboard Narwhal.

Mrs. Lee had gone on the 1961 at the French Mediterranean resort of Juan-les-Pins last week. (AP Wirephoto.)

A rock blaster's "shot," 833 Dunsmuir, where no one was at home, smashed windows and cracked plaster in a dozen Esquimalt homes and hurt one man slightly Monday afternoon.

The concussion was from a dynamite blast used to destroy a reinforced concrete air raid shelter on the Matson estate, Dunsmuir Road, where workmen are putting in foundations for the Salvation Army Sunset Lodge for the aged.

Chunks of concrete were hurled from 50 to 150 feet from the shelter, located behind a large rock outcrop facing Dunsmuir, away from the sea.

The air-burst was felt in a fan-shaped area northwest from the estate and caused damage to homes on Dunsmuir, Wollaston and Sea Terrace, as far away as Maitland.

MOST DAMAGE

Most damage was done to the home of A. W. Bradley, glass from his eye.

GENERATING UNDIES REAL FIRE DANGER

SCARBOROUGH, Eng. (AP)—Girls wearing nylon panties can cause explosions or fires, chemist J. L. Howlett told a conference of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents.

"Tests on female clerical staff wearing nylon underwear and leather shoes revealed charges of 600 volts after walking 25 yards."

Howlett suggested women working in dangerous locations should wear "conducting footwear" shoes that would dissipate the electricity as fast as the undies generated it.

ADVENTUROUS, IDEALISTIC

UBC Group to Aid Ghana As Separate 'Peace Corps'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A student group at the University of British Columbia will play a part in the Canadian version of the Peace Corps set up by U.S. President Kennedy.

They are planning a program of direct technical assistance to under-developed countries. By June they hope to have two home economists in Ghana, working under the auspices of the volunteers for international development.

The group is working under the direction of Dr. Cyril Belshaw, director of the university's United Nations technical training centre.

Dr. Belshaw told a Vancouver service club Tuesday the Canadian program will be distinct from that of the U.S. peace corps.

He said UBC students pressed for the scheme after similar groups were formed at the University of Toronto and Quebec's Laval University.

"Student interest shows that students today are just as adventurous and just as imbued with the idealism of students as they ever were," Dr. Belshaw said.

RAISING FUNDS

Cost of the Ghana project, about $6,000, will be raised by the students, he said, but they hope the scheme will grow to such an extent that only government grants will underwrite the expense.

The students' second project will be the grooming of 10 to 20 graduates for specific technical jobs in African and Commonwealth countries, probably next year.

"Our task is going to be to find... the best qualified people... not missionaries or colonial administrators," said Dr. Belshaw.

The volunteers must do their jobs with no political or military strings attached, he added.

THREE YEARS OF TRYING PAYS OFF WITH BIG PRIZE

Three years of faithfully sending questions to the "Ask Andy" column of the Times in the hope of winning a prize finally "paid off" for Kathy White, 11, of 784 Hillside.

Kathy's most recent question is answered in the column on this page today. Her prize for having the question chosen is a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia.

Kathy is the second oldest child in a family of four, and her mother is Mrs. Nina White. She was born in Vancouver, but, by the time she was six she was living here and ready to start school at North Ward, where she now is in grade five.

This is not the first time she has been a winner, since in 1959 she won the marble championship at her school. She plays basketball, "lots of softball," and now is nearing the end of her second year on the Kiwanis school safety patrol.

At school her favorite subjects are science, social studies, and art, but she is competent in all of them, and has no trouble with report cards.

Every Sunday she goes to Centennial United Church Sunday School, and her spare time outside of school and games is taken up with reading. Collecting nature books is a hobby, and she is a member of Victoria Public Library.

"I like horses, too, but I've never had one," she said. "I hope to some day."

"She has no doubts about her career."

"I'm going to be a nurse," she said positively. "I hope to train right here in Victoria."

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by children and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia, and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times. Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Kathy White, age 11, of Victoria, B.C., for her question:

What Exactly Is Coal?

Old Mother Earth has taken millions of years to make her beds of glossy black coal and, naturally, no one has been able to watch the magic recipe in the making. But coal is still being made and there are layers of partly formed coal in various places. This is how we can figure out the stages of the wonderful recipe. Nevertheless, there are people who refuse to accept this evidence from the experts. Some people even believe that our coal fell out of the sky, layer by layer.

Needless to say, your Andy does not believe this nonsense. He goes along with the experts who use their brains and work long, patient hours to find the answers. They tell us that coal is the carbon remains of ancient plant life and all the facts we can find prove them right.

The plant world clothes the bare land with a green mantle and embroiders it with patches of colored flowers. It uses water from the soil and carbon dioxide from the air to make plant food. And much of this food is converted into cellulose, which is a compound of carbon, hydrogen and oxygen. Wood is made from cellulose, held stiff with a little gum and cement. Plants have been using the same old recipe to make wood for countless millions of years.

Most of our coal beds began before the Age of Flowers, almost 300 million years ago. This was the Carboniferous Age when much of the dry land was covered with swampy seas. Primitive trees, great ferns and giant horsetails thrived in the swamps and cluttered the muddy waters with their fallen logs and leaves. There is little or no oxygen in stagnant water and the bacteria which cause rot and decay need oxygen. The fallen vegetation did not decay like the leaves on a dry forest floor.

When a swamp died, the old forest was soon covered with layers of dust, with perhaps rocks from a folding mountain or mud from a rushing river. The layer of vegetation was buried under new layers of rock and soil. Perhaps the area was swamped again and a new forest grew above the old one. In some places—this happened many times, making the earth below like a layer cake of coal and rock, coal and rock.

For millions of years, the buried vegetation was kept warm under the pressure of heavy layers above it. Chemical changes took place, just as they do when you bake a batter. Light gases were driven off and moisture was squeezed out from the wood brew. Finally, only the carbon and a few traces of gummy cement were left. The old forest became a bed of buried coal.

In the modern world we can see the coal of the future in certain mossy swamps. This boggy vegetation may be dried and burned as peat. In other regions we find lignite, a brownish coal, about 67 per cent of which is carbon. We find glossy black bituminous coal where the strange forests of the Carboniferous Age flourished some 250 million years ago. Sometimes we find imprints of ancient fronds pressed between the layers of this rich coal. Bituminous coal may be 88 per cent carbon. The still older anthracite, or hard coal, may be 90 per cent carbon.

Particularly the outfield, don't you?" I asked her—thinking of Joe DiMaggio.

"I think I'd prefer being the catcher," Marilyn laughed. Her white blonde hair which had come to her shoulders was now just below her ears; hair stylist George Masters had given her what he called "a killer cut" (because he thought it was sensational).

Marilyn entertained the Beautiful Wife and me at her Beverly Hills Hotel bungalow—serving us caviar and champagne.

"I'm glad you drink champagne," she said, pouring it herself. "So am I," I said, clicking glasses.

She spoke of DiMaggio fondly. "But we tried marriage once—a dismissal of that idea—'We're friends and that's a good way to end up after so many years.'"

Looking her prettiest and thinnest (she's down to 123 but jiggles plenty when she walks), she said she'll do "Rain" on TV. "I don't care which year—one of these years." She's been sun-bathing "protected by the shrubbery" and, risking a pun, she said, "I can work or loaf, and now I'm in the mood for loaf."

Marilyn autographed a magazine of champagne ("Bottoms Up, Love, Marilyn") and insisted on me taking it. I was quite a sensation in the hotel lobby saying, "Look what Marilyn Monroe gave me."

That's the way the Monroe bounces.

SUPERLATIVE IS WORD FOR FAIR

By AB KENT

Blanshard Street erupted into a fantasy of colored lights, whirling figures, shrieks of delight and the incomparable smell of a fair—all the fanfare of opening night Monday at Victoria Exhibition.

An estimated 9,000 people spilled through the gates onto Blanshard and Arena Way, through Memorial Arena and the Curling Rink in a headlong tilt at the city's biggest indoor-outdoor show.

They loved it. In a rare burst of balmy weather, youngsters and oldsters alike scammed and strolled about the city block of midway rides, skindivers, dancing girls, agricultural exhibits, hawkers, hamburger stands, vaudeville acts and umpteen commercial displays.

It's the 15th annual Jaycee fair and its daily program through Saturday shows signs of setting a new record for attendance.

The layout is the biggest yet—it is the first time the street has been roped off.

Five Requirements

"It is probably the biggest opening night we've ever had," said fair director Trevor Barlow, giving credit to the large-scale plan and the fine weather.

Minister of trade and commerce, Robert Bonner, observed along the same line in declaring the fair officially open.

"Five requirements are needed to ensure a successful program," he said.

These are regular appearances, enthusiastic sponsors, and exhibitors, good attendance and fine weather.

"They are all present. It looks like a first-class show—probably the best the Junior Chamber has ever put on."

"There's something for everyone here... Good luck to the Junior Chamber," said Mayor Percy Scurrell.

In a few minutes, against soft lights, the 10 finalists in the Miss Victoria pageant were presented on stage in a fashion show of the season's summer wear.

Talents on Display

Then the first pair of girls to demonstrate their talent took the spotlight—Patricia Aldeguer, modelling clothes she designed and sewed, and Shirley Reason playing piano and electronic organ.

Two more will follow each night until a winner is crowned Saturday.

As the klieg lights cooled, waiting for the final stage show of the day, spectators cast about the arena for the latest in appliances and gadgetry on the half acre of concrete.

They got demonstrations of new washing machines, food pulverizers, TV lawn mowers and small appliances almost without number.

They could see some of the finest in colored photos of B.C.'s newest highway developments, drink orangeade, get political information, see how to pounce and bounce on a trampoline, gulp candy apples and crunch popcorn.

Variety of Prizes

Outside they could ogle side-show girls, play bingo, take a chance on winning anything from a kewpie doll to a new car, camp outfit or cabin cruiser.

They took their kids to see the livestock—a prize Jersey milk producer, sturdy beef steers and furry rabbits—or for a pony ride, a merry-go-round ride, a mini-car ride, boat ride, ferris wheel ride... or fishing in a tank.

Munching spun sugar they climbed determinedly aboard the "big rides," the mechanized brain children of the midway promoters who try with a new conglomeration of steel each year to thrill giddy teenagers.

Monstrous Rides

This year, with an operation new to Victoria, the crowd could choose from such roaring monsters as the Octopus, Paratrooper, Roundup, Helicopter, Tiltawheel and Ferris Wheel, plus the Mad Mouse and Scrambler, a couple of machines almost guaranteed to

Federal Farm Minister Here For Campaign

Federal Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton tonight attends a reception at Deer Lodge, Mill Bay, with George Chatterton, Conservative candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich.

Mr. Hamilton arrives on the Island at 6 p.m. and after the reception, at 8, he will visit agricultural exhibits at the Jaycee Fair.

Wednesday he will visit farms in the by-election riding and leave by plane at 1:30 p.m. Three other campaign meetings at 8 tonight:

Owen Jones, B.C. president of the CCF with Glen Hamilton of the New Party in View Royal Community Hall; Attorney General Robert Bonner, Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan and Solicitor General Hahn at St. Mary's Church, Metehosin, and Liberal David Groos with Kenora M.P. William Benidickson at Bamber-ton.

tilt anyone's perspective for at least an hour.

The Mad Mouse is a sort of short-run, quick-recovery roller coaster with instant response on the turns and a pull-out like a dive bomber.

Scrambler produces roughly the same effect as an egg-beater. Both are debuting here.

4-H Demonstration

It all got underway again at 2 p.m. today with the first stage show at 3:30.

Tonight will be featured the first four of a dozen demonstrations by 4-H Clubs, at 7, with the rest slated for Wednesday.

At 8, again on stage, you can meet the queen candidates and see Gail Wilson in some musical comedy and Marilyn Sommers dance.

TO CATCH A FALLING STAR might be easier than nabbing an elusive, wind-tossed, gas-filled balloon on the carnival midway, but to these toddlers a balloon probably makes more sense than the rest of the space race. Fascinated by the bobbing baubles are twins Suzanne and Stephen Laszlo, two, of 628 Hillside.

Commonwealth Day Services on Friday

Hundreds of young Victorians will gather before the Legislative Buildings Friday to mark the annual Commonwealth Day service of the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire.

The annual ceremony which precedes the May 24 celebrations will start at 10:40 a.m. on the front steps and grounds of the main Legislative Building.

School children, service cadets, Boy Scouts, Cubs, Rangers, Girl Guides, Brownies and members of the St. John Ambulance Association will participate in the ceremony dedicated to the pioneers of the British Commonwealth.

Chaplain Horatio Todd, president of the Greater Victoria Ministerial Association, will lead the children in prayer.

A short address on the meaning of Commonwealth Day will also be given by provincial librarian Willard E. Ireland, and Mrs. Peter W. Bell, regent of the Municipal Chapter of Victoria IOOE.

The ceremony will be climaxed by a ceremonial parade and the placing of floral offerings upon the base of Queen Victoria's monument.

Music for the occasion will be provided by the Lansdowne Junior High School band. The Commonwealth service is unique in Canada and has been held annually here ever since 1918.

Purpose of the ceremony is to make the young people of Victoria aware of their heritage and responsibilities in Canada and the Commonwealth.

THREE "MUSTS" of carnival days are depicted above—the thrill of a ride, the joy of feasting and the urge to win at gaming. Three-year-old Ross Birtwistle, 1431 Lang, took a spin in a kiddy car;

Aid Suggested For City Buses

Committee Seeks Fact Finding Body

A special civic fact-finding committee was proposed today to study the overall bus service problem and possible subsidies to prevent service cuts and route changes.

The recommendation was made to city council by public works committee, which received a petition of 150 persons opposing service reductions.

Works committee, which is studying a B.C. Electric proposal to revamp the bus service this summer, said it would like a report from a fact-finding group on the entire public transport problem before dealing with the company proposal.

City engineer J. C. Garnett told the committee that B.C. Electric's argument for a cut-back to reduce continuing losses is hard to refute but the situation should be examined from all angles.

Mr. Garnett raised a number of questions which he said the fact-finding group could answer.

QUESTIONS

Would it hurt the city's best interests to consent to the cut-back, would a civic subsidy help, how much would it cost the city to construct new bus stops for changed routes and have all means been employed to halt the decline in bus passengers?

"I'm not saying we should subsidize the bus service but I do believe the question should be examined," said Mr. Garnett.

"After all, you can't ask a company to continue losing X-million dollars without reducing service or increasing prices. A price increase would be just as bad as a service reduction."

Mr. Garnett pointed out keeping the bus service operating was vital to the city because it was the trading centre for the area.

Traffic engineer Norman Worsley suggested a subsidy to help the company now might save taxpayers large sums in the future.

HUGE SUMS

He said without public transport, the city would have to spend huge sums on road improvement to handle extra car traffic.

City Manager C. C. Wyatt said existing service is excellent but people are not supporting it with their patronage.

"This is an extremely difficult case," said the magistrate. "On the one hand there is a man of previously impeccable character and, on the other, the public good."

"Women on the public streets must be protected... and free from molestation."

Mr. Ostler told Durston that if he had not had a good record and if the prosecution had not concurred with the probation officer's recommendations the sentence would have been far more rigorous.

Smiling Sky To Stay Happy Few More Days

Indications are that the bright, sunny skies over Victoria today and Monday will continue for the next couple of days, says weatherman William Mackie.

Monday's maximum temperature was 61 degrees but cool sea breezes kept today's noon-time temperature at the Gonzales weather office down to 51.

Temperature will drop to around 45 tonight rising Wednesday to between 62 and 68, said Mr. Mackie. The generally moist atmosphere will again cause fog to drift in over the coast during the early morning hours.

Only thing causing concern, he said, is the approach of a weather system from the west. However, this should pass to the south and its only probable effect here will be an increase in high cloud.

Navy Record Saves Rating From Jail

Only an "impeccable" service record and good character references saved a navy man from jail in city police court this morning.

Robert Alan Durston, HMCS Naden, previously convicted of common assault against Carol McMillan, 1564 Rockland, was fined $300 by Magistrate William Ostler.

Mr. Ostler also ordered him to post a $500 bond on his own recognizance to be of good behaviour for one year.

Durston was said to have accosted the girl downtown, then followed her to St. Charles Street on a bus. The assault took place on St. Charles.

"This is an extremely difficult case," said the magistrate. "On the one hand there is a man of previously impeccable character and, on the other, the public good."

"Women on the public streets must be protected... and free from molestation."

Mr. Ostler told Durston that if he had not had a good record and if the prosecution had not concurred with the probation officer's recommendations the sentence would have been far more rigorous.

C OF C IDEA

Forbidden Plateau Park Plan

The federal and provincial governments were asked today to acquire the Forbidden Plateau area on Vancouver Island as a national or provincial park.

The request was made in a resolution passed by the B.C. Chamber of Commerce at its convention in Vancouver.

Courtenay-Comox chamber put the resolution before the convention, saying action is needed to meet a growing demand for recreational areas on the island.

ALPINE AREA

The plateau is a large alpine area about 15 miles east of Courtenay. Its acreage has not been accurately assessed.

It is owned by Canadian Pacific Railway, part of a land grant given for construction of the E & N Railway, which runs between Victoria and Courtenay.

A spokesman for the parks branch here said the government has held discussions with the CPR for purchase of the area. It would be added to Strathcona Park.

B.C. CHAMBER TO MEET HERE

The British Columbia Chamber of Commerce voted in annual convention in Vancouver today to hold its 1962 convention in Victoria.

It will be the first time in 11 years of operation that the provincial chamber's annual meeting will be held outside of Vancouver.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

B.C.'s Maritime Museum, Signal Hill, Esquimalt, will remain open throughout the holiday weekend and observe the same hours as normal week days, from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Contractors have up to June 12 to submit tenders for the installation of sewers in the Cadboro Bay-Gordon Head area of Saanich.

Tenders were called Monday. They are for the installation of 13,000 feet of house connection lines, 37,000 feet of six-inch laterals and 17,000 feet of trunk lines.

Dr. J. R. Naden, chief medical officer of the Workmen's Compensation Board at Vancouver, will speak to the Victoria Life Underwriters' Association Wednesday noon in the Ingham Hotel. His topic will be "What insurance has meant to one man's family."

City public works committee today authorized stringing of about 200 flags and pennants over the Victoria Day parade route.

Mohan Singh Bains, 906 Market Street, was fined $25 plus $3.50 costs in city police court this morning on each of two charges of failing to file a 1959 income tax return. Under the tax law each day a return remains unfilled beyond a year is treated as a separate charge.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. What nationality is violinist Yehudi Menuhin?—P.U.

A. He's a U.S. citizen, born in New York City April 22, 1916, of Russian-born parents.

Q. What's the definition of the term "deadline"?—G.B.

A. Originally, it was a line drawn within or around a prison. If prisoners crossed this line they were liable to be shot. As generally used today, it means the time when printing forms of a newspaper are locked up, after which no copy can be inserted; hence, any fixed-time limit.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

You Can Lose Pounds
And Still Save Friends

We all know how difficult it is to diet, but it would not be such a problem were it not for our social life which is fraught with delightful people and wonderful food.

It seems downright unappreciative and like a slap in the face to tell your host or hostess that you cannot eat the luscious canapés or the delicious dessert. . . and please don't put any Lowman or has been handed down in the family for generations or, even worse, is the result of the creative and artistic efforts of a gourmet host or hostess. It's bad any way you look at it.

Now here's the secret to success. Just say that your doctor told you to try to lower your blood cholesterol level.

Your friends don't care if they ruin your figure, but many of them are willing to ruin your health. You are on safe ground here and right in the latest style.

For a while the salt-free diet helped lots of folks keep their figures. The most enchanting of that exotic sauce on the vegsalt-free diet. That had to do with health, and so everyone forgave them.

The wonderful thing about this idea is that you must diet in the same way to lower blood cholesterol as to lose weight. I think I was practically a genius to think it up, and I know it will be a great help to you in your battle against the bulge.

Wait a minute—I have just now realized that I have boxed myself in. Suppose my physician tells me to lower my blood cholesterol? Nobody will believe me! I will have to wear a bracelet with this information on it—like those who are allergic to certain drugs.

Anyway I am going to be brave and give you this hint—and hope that it won't come home to roost on me.

Ready-Made Clothes Princess' Preference

(LONDON Reuters) — Princess Alexandra, who buys many of her clothes ready-made, indicated that she likes a bargain when she opened London Fashion Week here Monday.

The 24-year-old princess, cousin of the Queen, opened a lavish show of wholesale fashions attended by hundreds of overseas buyers.

She told members of the British fashion industry that "the clothes you produce are recognized and appreciated both for their quality and finish and for their low prices."

The princess seemed particularly interested in the Aquascutum collection of country coats, cape-shaped in bold plaids, and in a group of afternoon coats and dresses by Frederick Starke which he called Royal Wedding as a tribute to the princess, brother, the Duke of Kent, who marries in June.

The show suggested that tweed, Scottish, English or Irish, will be London's top autumn fabric for daytime wear, with chiffon an easy winner in the evening.

USED ALL CHIFFON

Susan Small, one of the biggest houses, which exports to rich countries, chose chiffon for its entire ration of eight models.

Fur trimming was lavishly used on coats and suits, as collars, cuffs and even banding the hems of swinging three-quarter-length coats. Mink, fox, raccoon, beaver and Canadian lynx were among the furs used.

Aubergine and blackberry were new autumn colors. Creamy white was seen in wool dresses and suits, while gold was popular for cocktail wear.

"Little black dresses" were "Recognized and appreciated," said HRH Princess Alexandra

a feature of several collections. The fuller skirts decreed by Paris came second in popularity to straight skirts.

A Canadian buyer, Mrs. Mary Kosalle of Ottawa, admitted at a press conference that she had been slightly disappointed.

"I feel my customers already have plenty of straight skirts and I want to sell them something new," she said.

Jones-Eastwood Vows In St. Mary's Church

Baskets of flowers and lily of the valley pew markers decorated St. Mary's Anglican Church on Saturday evening when Miss Nellie-Jean Jones became the bride of Edward Lynn Eastwood. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Jones of Port Alice and Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Eastwood, 233 Government Street, Victoria.

Rev. H. J. Jones performed the ceremony. Bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was floor length, with three-tiered lace skirt over taffeta. Bodice had a square neckline enhanced by sequins and lily point sleeves. A petit point lace bridal cap held a sequin-studded-shoulder-length veil. Her cascade bouquet was of lily of the valley with three orchids.

Matron of honor, Mrs. O. J. Powell, wore a mauve ballerina-length dress of lace with matching picture hat.

L. Jones, Ladysmith, also Mr. and Mrs. J. Thompson, Port Alice, and Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Dawson, Mrs. Florence Nairn and Mrs. Laura Sinclair, all of New Westminster.

Bridesmaids, Miss Elizabeth Brooks and Miss Elaine Blades, were gownned in ballerina dresses of pink nylon chiffon. Flower girl, Miss Janet Thompson, was also in pink in a floor-length style.

Bride's mother chose a rose beige dress with green accessories. Groom's mother wore a mauve flowered dress with accessories en tone.

Skip McBratney was best man, and the ushers were Garry Allen, Vancouver and Glen Allen, Victoria.

At a reception in the Flamingo Room at the Crystal Garden, Donald McGhee, Port Alberni, proposed the toast to the bride. Pink carnations decorated the head table which was centred with a three-tier cake.

For a honeymoon trip to San Francisco, the bride wore a beige suit with three-quarter coat and green accessories. On return the couple will make their home at 2647 Prior St.

HOW TO HAVE A YOUNGER FACE THIS SPRING

Has winter left your complexion feeling harsh, flaky? Are little lines and crow's feet starting to show? These are warnings that your skin has been robbed of natural moisture by harsh weather, indoor heat, perhaps a weight-watching diet. You need POND'S DRY SKIN CREAM. This famous cream, now with Allantoin, starts to repair dry skin in just 10 minutes! Allantoin floats off lifeless surface skin cells, lets Pond's rich moisturized lanolin penetrate to thirsty tissues far below. Almost overnight, your complexion will become smoother, softer — you'll look younger. Pond's special formula will re-moisturize the driest skin. Get POND'S DRY SKIN CREAM — in jar or tube, wherever cosmetics are sold.

JUNE BALL HELPS

Armed Centre a 'Home' For All Servicemen

Members of the planning committee for this year's June ball to be held in HMCS Naden gymnasium on June 9, were given a short talk on the aims and objectives of the Armed Services Centre, at their meeting Monday afternoon in the centre.

Proceeds from the ball go each year to assist in work of the centre.

At yesterday's meeting, Rear-Admiral J. C. Hibbard (rtd.) described the organization of the centre in 1953 when he was Flag Officer Pacific Coast.

ON LEAVE

"Immediate objective was to bring the military and civilian population together in a bond of good-fellowship and to provide a leave centre for men of the services," the speaker said.

Leading businessmen assisted in starting the Armed Services Centre, Rear-Admiral Hibbard said.

"We aimed to make the centre a 'home' for servicemen on leave and to improve the relationships between them and our civilian population."

"The progress has been most encouraging. There is no part of the world that I know better than British Columbia for the happy relation-

Emmy Awards at 10 on 5; Kennedy Canadian Speech Noon Wed.

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

CBC's VERY ABLE newscaster Earl Cameron is a man who owns a face that seems to regard the world always from its dourst end. Indeed, someone once said of him: "All you have to do is look at Earl when he comes on the air to know that the news isn't going to be good."

But even the dispassionate Mr. Cameron couldn't resist a broad grin following the final item on the 11 o'clock newscast Friday night that saw a sidewalk interviewer going about the streets of San Francisco asking passers-by what they knew about Canada.

The questions were three: What is the capital of Canada? Who is the prime minister? What do you think of Canada as?

Said one woman: "The capital? Is it Montreal or Ontario?" Then, with a wave or her hand: "Oh, come on now—Canada hasn't got a capital."

Said a man: "I can't remember the name of the prime minister. It's an odd name but I know he's got lots of children."

And so it went, person after person, no one being able to answer any part of the question let alone the whole.

When asked what Canada meant to him one answered "Frenchmen." Another replied, "Quebec."

But the one that caused Mr. Cameron's broad smile was the result of the final interview.

"The capital city of Canada is Ottawa," the man being interviewed replied firmly.

"The prime minister? Ah yes, that is Mr. Diefenbaker."

"What does Canada remind me of? Big cities like Montreal and Toronto and Vancouver, lovely rivers and lakes. Canada is a very beautiful country."

"Good. And where do you live, sir?"

"Me? Oh, I'm from Holland."

THAT WAS AN EXCELLENT hour by CBS-TV, Thursday night, "Censorship and the Movie."

As movie critic for the Times I was especially interested in the subject but then I believe it should be of interest to all, especially the parents of adolescents and to those with strong censorship views.

For my part I hate censorship of any kind beyond obeying the canons of good taste to be adhered to at studio level. Why should any number of adults, no matter how well meaning, tell me what I should or should not see or hear?

As for the children being harmed by what they see or hear at the movies I would suggest that Britain has the answer to this—a mandatory symbol system on the marquee of theatres and in the accompanying advertisements. When parents see the "X" sign they know that is not for junior or for themselves, for that matter, if their tastes are not sophisticated.

On the other hand I believe honestly that if the child is imbued with gentility and honor his own home no number of naughty movies is likely to lead him off the straight and narrow. And by the self same measure, if children haven't been taught these cardinal rules at home they will find all sorts of means to get around having to see so much as one risqué show.

The home is something the school can't replace anymore than can the church or Sunday school.

The home is the main foundation for everything that is good. It is the great trunk that bears the branches and, with help from the others mentioned, the flowers of life.

SCHOOL BOARD

Vic High Damage Assessed

Recent vandalism at Victoria High School caused $1,593 damage, Greater Victoria school board was informed Monday night.

Trustee Richard Reeve hailed a decision by the "vast majority of decent students" at the school to donate 10 cents each to a special fund for replacing model airplanes that were destroyed by the vandals.

The models, worth a total of $100, were not covered by the board's insurance policy as was the damaged school equipment. They belonged to several students.

Mr. Reeve added that he was sorry to see the destruction was reported in the newspapers because "by keeping it secret we are in a sense defeating the attempts by these youths to gain some kind of notoriety."

Leaves of absence for travel will not be permitted Greater Victoria teachers with less than five years' service in this district, trustees decided. Four applications for travel leaves were turned down under the new policy.

A Victoria centennial committee request to stage a contest among high-school students for design of a centennial crest and flag to be featured in next year's celebrations was approved.

But a request to permit students to present an historical pageant during the centennial celebrations was tabled for study.

The Shoreline High School Orchestra, from a school district just north of Seattle, will visit Victoria Saturday and give a public concert in S. J. Willis Junior High School auditorium starting at 8 p.m.

Earlier this year the orchestra—made up of 55 players—was selected along with two others out of 45 orchestras from six western states to play at the Northwest music educators' convention.

Its visit here is being sponsored by the Greater Victoria Schools' Orchestra group.

Highlights of the band's performance will be Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," "La Scala Di Seta Overture," by Rossini, and the first movement from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony.

School Transfer Plan Opposed

COBBLE HILL—The provincial cabinet was asked Monday to stop a plan to transfer senior students from here to high school in Duncan.

Four representatives presented the cabinet, sitting as council of public instruction in compliance with the School Act, with a petition of 725 names protesting removal of grade 11 and 12 students from George Bonner School at Cobble Hill.

Spokesman George Bonner said the area is concerned about "down-grading" school standards in the community, and pointed out Cobble Hill has had a high school since 1928.

One grade was transferred to Duncan last year and it is proposed to send another grade this year.

DUNCAN—Installation of a $250,000 sewer extension passed by ratepayers last Thursday is expected to be finished by fall, Mayor Jack Dobson said today.

The program, largely for the Townsite area east of the city, was approved by a 255-41 vote in which 20 per cent of electors voted.

At the same time a $50,000 waterworks extension program was approved by 264-31 votes.

Most of the land involved is developed, but lies in a flood hazard area. Both projects involve mains and laterals and the sewer job includes a disposal lagoon.

Slight damage was done to the hull of hydrographic survey ship William J. Stewart when it grazed a shoal in the Queen Charlottes Sunday night.

A department of transport spokesman said the ship would continue about her present duties and may go into dry-dock for survey at a later date in Victoria or Vancouver.

DUNCAN—The shorter work week holds the only solution to automation and population explosion, local 1-80 International Woodworkers of America was told Sunday.

Speaker was international president Al Hartung, of Portland, who said unemployment in Canada and the United States is a "tragic situation" and the governments of the two countries are showing no great concern.

NANAIMO—The Canadian Pacific's Princess Patricia will operate one additional round trip on Vancouver-Nanaimo route on Friday to handle extra Victoria Day weekend traffic.

The "Pat" will leave Vancouver both days at 8:45 p.m. and arrive Nanaimo 11 p.m. and depart at 11:15 p.m. for the return journey to Vancouver, arriving 1:30 a.m. Times shown are Pacific Daylight.

DUNCAN—Alex Johnny, 24, of Green Point, pleaded guilty in police court here to uttering a forged document and was remanded to Friday for sentence.

According to evidence, Johnny, married and father of two children, last November found with his mail a $24 family allowance cheque for Mrs. Florence Johnny.

He said she was not a relative and that he did not know her, then admitted signing her name to the cheque, cashing it, and using the money to buy groceries.

Efforts by Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities officials to persuade the federal government to extend winter work cost-sharing benefits to all civic projects carried out during the winter months were requested by the committee.

It also suggested that the Union of B.C. Municipalities continue its fight to convince the provincial government that permanent arbitration boards, with judges as chairmen, should be established to settle disputes with civic employees.

Nuclear Policies Worry Voters

Nuclear weapons emerged as a major Esquimalt-Saanich issue Monday as questioners pressed candidates for their views at a five-party rally at Mill Bay.

Conservative George Chatterton drew most of the heckling from the crowd of about 80 in Mill Bay community hall.

But most questions were on the nuclear issue, and whether Canada should acquire nuclear weapons.

Replied Mr. Chatterton: "First of all we want peace. We mustn't confuse a desire to promote peace with the need to be prepared for eventualities. If Hitler had thought the western powers would fight him maybe the Second World War would not have occurred."

Liberal candidate David Groos said the nuclear threat "overshadows every other issue in the campaign."

"I don't believe in banning the bomb, because the fact that the U.S. has it today is our only guarantee of peace."

But Canada should not join the U.S. as a nuclear power, it should exert its influence on other nations to remain non-nuclear.

Glen Hamilton of the New Party told the meeting: "No nation should use arms except through the authority of the United Nations."

He said he is opposed to the spread of nuclear weapons, and the U.S. is not really a true defence for Canada. "I see no reason why Canada should be a water boy for the U.S. military forces."

Four Byelections Ready

Esquimalt-Saanich is the only riding with more than two candidates in four federal byelections to be held May 29. Official nominations closed Monday.

It is a five-party fight in Esquimalt-Saanich. The other ridings, in eastern Canada, feature a straight Liberal-Conservative contest.

Esquimalt-Saanich is the only riding where the New Party is in the running, seeking its second seat in Parliament. All four seats were formerly held by the Conservatives.

Esquimalt-Saanich candidates: David Groos, Liberal; George Hahn, Social Credit;

Glen Hamilton, New Party; George Chatterton, Conservative, and Don Poirier of the Socialist Party of Canada.

Norman Baker of New Westminster, who had announced he would be a candidate, running as "United Empire Loyalist," did not file a nomination.

Candidates in the Ontario riding of Leeds: John R. Matheson, Liberal and Elwood Stewart, Conservative.

In Kings, P.E.I.: Mrs. Margaret MacDonald, Conservative, and Thomas J. Kickham, Liberal.

Restigouche—Madawaska, New Brunswick: Edgar Fournier, Conservative, and J. E. Dube, Liberal.

Esquimalt-Saanich is vacant after appointment of Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, a Conservative. Conservative MP Hayden Stanton's death vacated Leeds. Another Tory member, John A. Macdonald, who died recently, held Kings.

New CNR Directorships Jobs for 'Tory Healers'

(From Times News Service)

OTTAWA—The Commons gave first reading Monday night to government legislation to increase the CNR board of directors to 12 from seven.

The Liberals opposed the legislation on division, without a recorded vote.

Lionel Chevrier (L—Montreal Laurier) said that, with the present unemployment picture and with the railway work force dwindling by 5,000 workers a year, this was not the time to increase the board of directors of the publicly-owned railway.

He said that the government will face problems in appointing 12 men to the board so as to provide proper regional representation.

Ernest Broome (PC—Vancouver South) said that when the board is increased, there should also be provision for a stronger executive committee of directors.

J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bon-

Stick Used May Be Carrot Too

But he also indicated that both a stick and a carrot could have been involved.

The stick—possible compulsory arbitration measures; the carrot—hope of early action on subsidy proposals of the MacPherson royal commission on transportation.

Mr. Balcer also said he is "convinced" that the first report of the MacPherson Royal Commission had "quite a bearing" on the final discussions leading to the wage settlement.

Mr. Balcer was pressed by Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) and Mr. Chevrier (L—Montreal Laurier) on whether the railways had some sort of assurance that the gov-

Farm Credit Boosted by $100 Million

A one-word legislative amendment will add $100,000,000 to the amount of credit facilities available to Canadian farmers, Finance Minister Fleming explained.

The change substitutes "four" for "three" in the Farm Improvement Loans Act—and thus the maximum amount of guaranteed bank loans available under the act will be $400,000,000.

The proposed amendment met approval from all parties in the Commons.

The government has not yet

Bands, Bands More Bands Cram Parade

Bands are bursting facilities for marshalling next Monday's big Victoria Day parade, a Victoria celebrations committee spokesman said today.

There are so many military bands alone—nine at last count—that Royal Athletic Park won't hold them all and extra forming-up space has been arranged in adjoining streets.

Civil bands number about 25, most of them from city and visiting schools.

Mrs. Ethel Bishop, celebrations secretary, said the problem is to space so many bands with other parade units so they won't clash en route.

There are more than 125 overall parade entries, to date including "a mass of horse entries."

Please let her know at EV 2-3912 or EV 3-6109 if your group has a late comer, she asked today.

Another need is a few more billets for girls of the Vernon group who will take part in celebrations.

NEW FEATURE

To entertain pre-parade crowds from 9.15 to parade time, the committee innovates a new feature this year—48 square dancers aged 8-18 performing on a flat deck truck at six main points on the route.

They will appear at Pandora and Cook, Yates and Quadra, Yates and Douglas, Douglas and Fisgard, Douglas and Yates and Government on the Causeway.

Parade marshal Sid Anderson asks public co-operation in keeping off the street and out of the truck's way.

A-Bomb for Red China

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japan's defence board said Monday that Communist China plans to start nuclear weapons tests within the next three years.

HIGH SCHOOL 'LITTERBUGS'

Trustees Ask Police Aid

Police should crack down on high school students who litter streets with their lunch wrappings and cigarette butts, Greater Victoria school trustees suggested Monday.

Board members indicated they were stymied in their attempts to stop the littering of streets near schools.

Several residents near Oak Bay High School complained of the filth and one even said he could tell when students were out strolling the streets while eating their lunches because it always brought an influx of seagulls and crows.

"I'm ashamed and deeply troubled by what I see around our secondary schools," superintendent John Gough said. He agreed with comments that police action is needed.

Board chairman W. C. Gelling said parents also should take action by setting a better example.

"The parents who drive through our streets and toss a cigarette butt out of the car window are just as much offenders as their own sons and daughters who drop their lunch papers on the sidewalk," he said.

Research On Columbia Inadequate?

Social Credit candidate George Hahn concentrated mainly on the Columbia power project at Esquimalt-Saanich by-election rally Monday night in the Royal Oak Women's Institute Hall.

He charged, before an audience of 12, that the federal government had made cost and construction estimates without adequate technical research.

The Conservative government's estimate of 3.79 mills for the cost of power delivered at Vancouver on completion of the project, he said, was "not an engineer's figure but a politician's figure."

Preceding Mr. Hahn were Mines and Petroleum Resources Minister, Kenneth Kiernan and Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi.

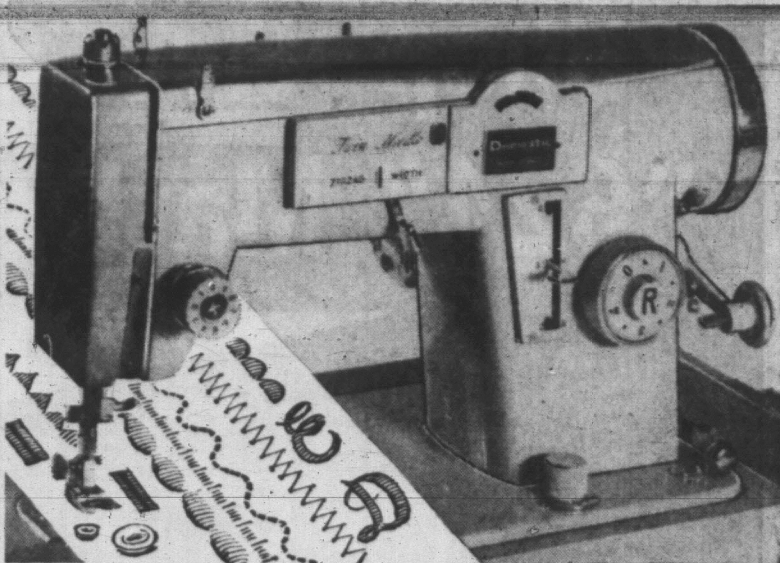

Speaking on the Tory fiscal policy and referring to government disassociation from actions of the Bank of Canada, Mr. Kiernan painted the picture of a government "which is trying to blunder and bluff through a situation of its own making."

On unemployment, he said, one of the least understood results was the "real and gravest loss and belittlement of the individual's character."

Describing himself as "an old logger" Mr. Gagliardi asked the audience to help elect Mr. Hahn as "the underdog" in the Ottawa tree and "pretty soon we'll have the tree."

He decried the Conservative government continuation of Liberal tight money policy and described them as sitting on the "same old clutch of eggs the Liberals tried to hatch for so long."

Korea
Coups
Shaky?Public Support
Reported Slim

SEOUL (Reuters)—South Korean Army reserve units today seized power here in a pre-dawn coup but reports indicated they did not have a firm grip on the country and were running into a lack of public support.

The reservists were in control of Seoul but American officials were working to convince them to abandon their coup and restore the legal government headed by Dr. John Chang.

A statement by the United States military command in Seoul, monitored in Tokyo, claimed that "no great amount of public support for the uprising has become apparent."

It said there appeared to be "only about 3,600 revolutionary troops" in Seoul. Earlier reports had placed the number of troops at 25,000.

"Troops of the frontline as well as the air force and navy remain steadfast in their positions and continue to assure the defence of the republic," the statement said. "Other cities in Korea remain relatively quiet."

CLAIMED CONTROL

The junta claimed earlier that it had control over other important South Korean cities and over all airports and harbors in the country.

It ordered martial law and a tight curfew imposed throughout the country and clamped censorship on South Korean newspapers.

American officials meanwhile appealed repeatedly to the leaders of the coup to restore the legal government of the country and pledged firm support for the administration by Dr. John Chang.

The revolutionary council set up by the leaders of the coup met for an hour this afternoon with acting American ambassador Marshall Green but showed no sign of giving in to the U.S. demands.

President Po Sun Yun, who also attended the meeting, was reported to be trying to work out a compromise that would involve forming a non-partisan cabinet in place of the revolutionary council to settle the problem without bloodshed.

SHOULD KNOW SOON

Observers said the next 12 to 24 hours should tell whether the junta would win or collapse. Much hinged on the attitude of heavily armed frontline South Korean troops.

The junta, led by army chief of staff Lt. Gen. Do Yung Chang, seized power after a violent gunbattle around the central government buildings about dawn.

The junta, after threatening earlier in the day to arrest all cabinet ministers, tonight promised that their safety would be guaranteed if they gave themselves up and resigned.

The junta said it was anti-Communist and wanted friendly relations with the United States.

Talks Shunned
By Laos Gov't

GENEVA (Reuters)—The much-postponed Geneva conference on Laos today finally opened with an hour-long "business session," after which the delegates retired into secret session.

The 14-nation talks began after five days' delay over who should represent the strife-torn Indochina kingdom at the meeting.

Last Tribute
Paid Cooper

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Famed movie hero Gary Cooper was eulogized today at a Requiem Mass as "unparalleled in the perfection of his art."

A crowd of several hundred outside the Roman Catholic Church of the Good Shepherd in Beverly Hills was quiet and orderly as Hollywood paid final tribute to one of its greatest—honoring the widow's plea for a dignified funeral.

More than 100 policemen manned ropes along the sidewalk outside the California mission-style church on busy Santa Monica Boulevard.

Gov't in Exile Plan

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP)—Portuguese Gen. Humberto Delgado said Monday a government in exile soon will be set up in Europe or Africa with the aim of toppling Premier Antonio Salazar.

As the delegates met in the old League of Nations Palace of Nations, only the Communist-led Pathet Lao and the neutralist group of ex-Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma were on hand.

The Laotian government delegation refused to attend because the conference permitted the Pathet Lao to take part in the deliberations.

Earlier, a spokesman for the right-wing delegation had declared his group would walk out if representatives of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao organization or former premier Prince Souvanna Phouma were given more than observer status.

Today, the spokesman revised his stand and said the right-wing delegation would not attend unless it got fresh instructions from Vientiane, the Laotian administrative capital.

ORDERED START TODAY

Britain and Russia, co-chairmen of the talks that were supposed to have started last Friday, ordered the conference to begin today after the United States reluctantly agreed to a compromise formula permitting full participation by the neutralist and pro-Communist delegations.

SEEKS ARMS BAN

The West was expected to seek a ban on all arms shipments to the Southeast Asian kingdom in an attempt to solidify the shaky truce there.

The British, Soviet, U.S. and French foreign ministers were reported to have reached tacit agreement to avoid raising issues that might put new obstacles in the way of negotiations in Laos between the warring factions for establishment of a single coalition government.

Columbia Cellulose is a subsidiary of Canadian Chemical and Cellulose Company Ltd., a holding company organized by Celanese Corporation of America, a U.S. company.

Since relations between the U.S. and Cuba were strained and eventually broken the U.S. government has banned all exports of U.S. goods to Cuba except medical supplies and food.

The Cuban orders are believed to be forerunners of others. B.C. Forest Products will provide future shipments.

RESIGNS

Lebanese government of Premier Saeb Salam resigned today, nine months after it was formed following the country's first general elections under President Fouad Shehab. Reason given was dissension in the 18-man cabinet following dismissal of six of its members last week.

VIENTIANE (AP)—A helicopter and three Americans were reported missing today and feared down in rugged mountain territory partly controlled by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels.

TRUMANSBURG, N.Y. (AP)—Grocer James Crimmins believes that "if you are going to have a good time in this business, you have to make the laughs, yourself."

So he set up a fancy display and put "instant water" on sale. The advertisement called it the "best possible way to make coffee, particularly in instant coffee," and "fine for outdoor cooking."

Five persons bought the water Saturday, at 85 cents for a quart can.

Crimmins said he would refund the money.

Private Meeting
Between Friends

GENEVA (AP)—Red Chinese diplomats here have made a carefully-timed approach to the Canadian team attending the Laos peace talks—possibly in the hope of better relations between Peking and Ottawa.

The move was disclosed today—the day of President and Mrs. John Kennedy's scheduled arrival in Canada on a brief official visit.

The Canadians have not accorded diplomatic recognition to the Chinese Communist regime, and External Affairs Minister Howard C. Green in an interview last week said he sees no prospect of recognition while Peking goes on pressing its claim to Formosa.

Canadian diplomats reported that the Chinese Reds made their quiet approach during the weekend and based it on an old personal friendship between two high officials of the conference delegations now in Geneva.

The meeting was between two ambassadors—Wang Ping-nan, who heads the Chinese mission in Poland, and Chester Ronning, Canada's envoy in India.

In Ottawa, an external affairs department source said today the department has not yet received a formal report of contacts between Canadian and Red Chinese diplomats in Geneva, but described such meetings as "quite normal in the circumstances."

KNOWS CHINA WELL

Ronning, deputy leader of the Canadian delegation at the Laos talks, was born in China. He went to school with Wang and speaks fluent Chinese.

The formal purpose of Wang's visit to Ronning was described thus by Canadian sources:

1. To express Peking's thanks for the big Canadian grain sales to China at this time of acute food shortage.

2. To express thanks for the work Canada has put in as a member of the control commission umpiring the Laotian truce.

3. To convey an assurance that China genuinely wants Laos set up as a neutral country whose status would be internationally underwritten.

The developing pattern of Canada's future relations with Red China is considered a certain subject of discussion when President Kennedy meets with Prime Minister Diefenbaker today and Wednesday.

REDS UN BID DUE

While the Canadians may not recognize the Peking authorities, Diefenbaker at the same time is unlikely to vote against Red China's membership in the United Nations if that issue, as expected, comes to a head soon.

Canada currently is beginning to do big business with Red China.

Grain sales by 1963 are expected to top $400,000,000. Ottawa has invited Peking to send over an official trade mission to step up still further the volume of business between them.

Against that backdrop the Chinese move in Geneva is regarded as significant. Further exchanges between the two sides seem inevitable.

CHESTER RONNING
... meets envoyKennedy
Arrives
At Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—President Kennedy arrived today for talks with Prime Minister Diefenbaker and a two-day "get acquainted" visit in Canada's capital.

The president and his attractive wife, received a public welcome second only to that seen on royal visits.

The RCAF base at south-side Uplands, where the presidential plane landed at 4:35 p.m. EDT (1:30 PDT), was thrown open to the public.

Hundreds of flags—the Canadian Ensign and the Stars and Stripes—were set out Monday at the air field and along the final section of the 12-mile route that the president will follow on his drive into the city.

RIDE IN CONVERTIBLES

President and Mrs. Kennedy were to travel in open convertibles—weather permitting. The weather forecast was for mixed clouds and sunshine and a temperature near 70—a break from the heat wave of the last three days.

The heat has forced tens of thousands of tulips into bloom and the peak of the famous tulip display thus coincides with the state visit.

This first day will be mostly formalities, starting with addresses of welcome at the airport by Governor-General Vanier and the prime minister. President Kennedy will reply, and also inspect an RCAF guard of honor.

Following their arrival at Government House, residence of the governor-general where they will stay, the president and Mrs. Kennedy will take part in the traditional tree-planting ceremony on Government House grounds.

Main events of the presidential visit come Wednesday, Mr. Kennedy will address members of the Commons and Senate in a Commons chamber speech that will be broadcast nationally by radio and television.

Survey Has Election Close,
Slight Edge to Liberals

The contest in the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election is much closer than many politicians associated with it think.

And, contrary to some opinion, the edge, if any, is held at present by the Liberal party.

These are the conclusions arising from a scientific sampling of the riding conducted this month by a research agency, results of which were learned today.

The survey was conducted on May 1, 2 and 3 by the Watts Marketing Research Ltd. of Vancouver.

Their field workers talked to 300 people in the riding, 135 of them men and 165 women. The interviewers did not identify themselves with any political party, simply stating they were taking a survey.

Almost two-thirds of those interviewed gave definite answers to the questions

"Which party would you prefer to see win in the forthcoming Esquimalt-Saanich by-election?"

Slightly more than one-third of those interviewed expressed no opinion—indicating that there is still a large uncommitted vote in the riding at this stage.

However, out of the total questioned the Liberal party's percentage was 23.5% with the Progressive Conservatives second at 18.3%.

Following is the detailed breakdown by percentages:

	Total	Male	Female
CCF	11.8%	14.1%	9.7%
Liberal	23.5%	17.0%	29.7%
Progressive Conservative	18.3%	21.5%	15.2%
Social Credit	11.8%	13.3%	10.3%
Don't Know	34.6%	34.1%	35.1%

There are 40,926 registered voters in the riding, so that the survey covers .73%. In the last general election 28,000 odd cast ballots.

U.S. SUBSIDIARY INVOLVED

Canadian Pulp for Cuba

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Canadian subsidiary of a United States company is participating in a $1,000,000 order of pulp for Cuba.

The Columbia Cellulose Company plant at Prince Rupert is said to be providing more than half of a reported order of 9,000 tons of bleached and semi-bleached pulp.

The remainder of the order will be supplied by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company, a Canadian company. The total order is reported to be worth between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000.

A Columbia spokesman said a Liberian ship now is loading pulp for Cuba at Prince Rupert.

But he said he did not know how much of the order the company is providing.

Columbia Cellulose is a subsidiary of Canadian Chemical and Cellulose Company Ltd., a holding company organized by Celanese Corporation of America, a U.S. company.

Since relations between the U.S. and Cuba were strained and eventually broken the U.S. government has banned all exports of U.S. goods to Cuba except medical supplies and food.

The Cuban orders are believed to be forerunners of others. B.C. Forest Products will provide future shipments.

HARD TO BEAT is the glee of three Lees as they laugh and wave from their kiddies' ferris wheel seat in the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce Industrial and Agriculture Fair which opened Monday. They are Lila, nine; Stephen, 10; and Graham, seven, of 669 Burnside Road.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

B.C.'s Maritime Museum, Signal Hill, Esquimalt, will remain open throughout the holiday weekend and observe the same hours as normal week days, from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Contractors have up to June 12 to submit tenders for the installation of sewers in the Cariboro Bay Corridor Head area of Saanich.

Tenders were called Monday. They are for the installation of 13,000 feet of house connection lines, 37,000 feet of six-inch laterals and 17,000 feet of trunk lines.

Dr. J. R. Naden, chief medical officer of the Workmen's Compensation Board at Vancouver, will speak to the Victoria Life Underwriters' Association Wednesday noon in the Ingham Hotel. His topic will be "What insurance has meant to one man's family."

City public works committee today authorized stringing of about 200 flags and pennants over the Victoria Day parade route.

Mohan Singh Bains, 906 Market Street, was fined $25 plus $3.50 costs in city police court this morning on each of two charges of failing to file a 1959 income tax return. Under the tax law each day a return remains unfilled beyond a year is treated as a separate charge.

A. He's a U.S. citizen, born in New York City April 22, 1916, of Russian-born parents.

Q. What's the definition of the term "deadline"?—G.B.

A. Originally, it was a line drawn within or around a prison. If prisoners crossed this line they were liable to be shot. As generally used today, it means the time when printing forms of a newspaper are locked up, after which no copy can be inserted; hence, any fixed time limit.

Blanshard Street erupted into a fantasy of colored lights, whirling figures, shrieks of delight and the incomparable smell of a fair—all the fanfare of opening night Monday at Victoria Exhibition.

An estimated 9,000 people spilled through the gates onto Blanshard and Arena Way, through Memorial Arena and the Curling Rink in a headlong tilt at the city's biggest indoor-outdoor show.

They loved it. In a rare burst of balmy weather, youngsters and oldsters alike scampered and strolled about the city block of midway rides, skindivers, dancing girls, agricultural exhibits, hawkers, hamburger stands, vaudeville acts and umpteen commercial displays.

It's the 15th annual Jaycee fair and its daily program through Saturday shows signs of setting a new record for attendance.

The layout is the biggest yet—it is the first time the street has been roped off.

Five Requirements

"It is probably the biggest opening night we've ever had," said fair director Trevor Barlow, giving credit to the large-scale plan and the fine weather.

Minister of trade and commerce, Robert Bohner, observed along the same line in declaring the fair officially open.

"Five requirements are needed to ensure a successful program," he said.

These are regular appearances, enthusiastic sponsors, and exhibitors, good attendance and fine weather.

"They are all present. It looks like a first-class show—probably the best the Junior Chamber has ever put on."

"There's something for everyone here... Good luck to the Junior Chamber," said Mayor Percy Scurrell.

In a few minutes, against soft lights, the 10 finalists in the Miss Victoria pageant were presented on stage in a fashion show of the season's summer wear.

Talents on Display
Then the first pair of girls to demonstrate their talent took the spotlight—Patricia Aldeguer, modelling clothes she designed and sewed, and Shirley Reason playing piano and electronic organ.

Two more will follow each night until a winner is crowned Saturday.

As the klieg lights cooled, waiting for the final stage show of the day, spectators cast about the arena for the latest in appliances and gadgetry on the half acre of concrete.

They got demonstrations of new washing machines, food pulverizers, TV, lawn mowers and small appliances almost without number.

They could see some of the finest in colored photos of B.C.'s newest highway developments, drink orangeade, get political information, see how to pounce and bounce on a trampoline, gulp candy apples and crunch popcorn.

Variety of Prizes
Outside they could ogle side-show girls, play bingo, take a chance on winning anything from a kewpie doll to a new car, camp outfit or cabin cruiser.

They took their kids to see the livestock—a prize Jersey milk producer, sturdy beef steers and furry rabbits—or for a pony ride, a merry-go-round ride, a mini-car ride, boat ride, ferris wheel ride... or fishing in a tank.

Munching spilt sugar they climbed determinedly aboard the "big rides," the mechanized brain children of the midway promoters who try with a new conglomeration of steel each year to thrill giddy teenagers.

Monstrous Rides
This year, with an operation new to Victoria, the crowd could choose from such roaring monsters as the Octopus, Paratrooper, Roundup, Helicopter, Tiltawheel and Ferris Wheel, plus the Mad Mouse and Scrambler, a couple of machines almost guaranteed to

Federal Farm Minister Here For Campaign
Federal Agricultural Minister Alvin Hamilton tonight attends a reception at Deer Lodge, Mill Bay, with George Chatterton, Conservative candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich.

Mr. Hamilton arrives on the Island at 6 p.m. and after the reception, at 8, he will visit agricultural exhibits at the Jaycee Fair.

Wednesday, he will visit farms in the by-election riding and leave by plane at 1:30 p.m.

Three other campaign meetings at 8 tonight: Owen Jones, B.C. president of the CCF with Glen Hamilton of the New Party in View Royal Community Hall; Attorney-General Robert Bonner, Minister Kenneth Kiernan and Solicitor General Hahn at St. Mary's Church, Metehosin, and Liberal David Meach with Kenora MP William Benidickson at Bamber-ton.

The Mad Mouse is a sort of short-run, quick-recovery roller coaster with instant response on the turns and a pull-out like a dive bomber. Scrambler produces roughly the same effect as an egg-beater. Both are debuting here.

4-H Demonstration

It all got underway again at 2 p.m. today with the first stage show at 3:30.

Tonight will be featured the first four of a dozen demonstrations by 4-H Clubs, at 7, with the rest slated for Wednesday.

At 8, again on stage, you can meet the queen candidates and see Gail Wilson in some musical comedy and Marilyn Sommers dance.

Commonwealth Day Services on Friday

Hundreds of young Victorians will gather before the Legislative Buildings Friday to mark the annual Commonwealth Day service of the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire.

The annual ceremony which precedes the May 24 celebrations will start at 10:40 a.m. on the front steps and grounds of the main Legislative Building.

School children, service cadets, Boy Scouts, Cubs, Rangers, Girl Guides, Brownies and members of the St. John Ambulance Association will participate in the ceremony dedicated to the pioneers of the British Commonwealth.

Chaplain Horatio Todd, president of the Greater Victoria, Ministerial Association, will lead the children in prayer.

A short address on the meaning of Commonwealth Day will also be given by provincial librarian Willard E. Ireland, and Mrs. Peter W. Bell, regent of the Municipal Chapter of Victoria IOOE.

The ceremony will be climaxed by a ceremonial parade and the placing of floral offerings upon the base of Queen Victoria's monument.

Music for the occasion will be provided by the Lansdowne Junior High School band. The Commonwealth service is unique in Canada and has been held annually here ever since 1918.

Purpose of the ceremony is to make the young people of Victoria aware of their heritage and responsibilities in Canada and the Commonwealth.

SIGN THEFT CLAIMED BY SOCREDS

Social Credit campaign officials said today about 50 large wooden signs for candidate George Hahn have been knocked down and stolen in Esquimalt-Saanich.

The signs were painted on four-by-eight-foot plywood panels and mounted along the Trans-Canada Highway between Wilkinson Road and Cobble Hill.

"They took them all," said the official.

Half-inch plywood panels four by eight cost more than $4 each.

"We will put up some new ones, but only a few. We just can't afford to replace them all," said the spokesman.

Earlier in the campaign, someone splashed black paint over the word "Hahn," leaving signs which said "vote George."

Aid Suggested For City Buses

Committee Seeks Fact Finding Body

A special civic fact-finding committee was proposed today to study the overall bus service problem and possible subsidies to prevent service cuts and route changes.

The recommendation was made to city council by public works committee, which received a petition of 150 persons opposing service reductions.

Works committee, which is studying a B.C. Electric proposal to revamp the bus service this summer, said it would like a report from a fact-finding group on the entire public transport problem before dealing with the company proposal.

City engineer J. C. Garnett told the committee that B.C. Electric's argument for a cut-back to reduce continuing losses is hard to refute but the situation should be examined from all angles.

Mr. Garnett raised a number of questions which he said the fact-finding group could answer.

QUESTIONS

Would it hurt the city's best interests to consent to the cut-back, would a civic subsidy help, how much would it cost the city to construct new bus stops for changed routes and have all means been employed to halt the decline in bus passengers?

"I'm not saying we should subsidize the bus service but I do believe the question should be examined," said Mr. Garnett.

"After all, you can't ask a company to continue losing X-million dollars without reducing service or increasing prices. A price increase would be just as bad as a service reduction."

Mr. Garnett pointed out keeping the bus service operating was vital to the city because it was the trading centre for the area.

Traffic engineer Norman Worsley suggested a subsidy to help the company now might save taxpayers large sums in the future.

HUGE SUMS

He said without public transport, the city would have to spend huge sums on road improvement to handle extra car traffic.

City Manager C. C. Wyatt said existing service is excellent but people are not supporting it with their patronage.

He added that when the city's franchise to B.C. Electric runs out in a few years, the company might quit the service instead of renewing and "then the city would be faced with very heavy subsidies because the municipalities would have to take it over."

Proposed fact-finding committee would include an alderman and representatives from the city engineer's department, downtown business, the public at large and the bus company.

Smiling Sky To Stay Happy Few More Days

Indications are that the bright, sunny skies over Victoria today and Monday will continue for the next couple of days, says weatherman William Mackie.

Monday's maximum temperature was 61 degrees but cool sea breezes kept today's noon-time temperature at the Gonzales weather office down to 51.

Temperature will drop to around 45 tonight rising Wednesday to between 62 and 68, said Mr. Mackie. The generally moist atmosphere will again cause fog to drift in over the coast during the early morning hours.

Only thing causing concern, he said, is the approach of a weather system from the west. However, this should pass to the south and its only probable effect here will be an increase in high cloud.

Navy Record Saves Rating From Jail

Only an "impeccable" service record and good character references saved a navy man from jail in city police court this morning.

Robert Alan Durston, HMCS Naden, previously convicted of common assault against Carol McMillan, 1564 Rockland, was fined $300 by Magistrate William Ostler.

Mr. Ostler also ordered him to post a $500 bond on his own recognizance to be of good behaviour for one year.

Durston was said to have accosted the girl downtown, then followed her to St. Charles Street on a bus. The assault took place on St. Charles.

"This is an extremely difficult case," said the magistrate. "On the one hand there is a man of previously impeccable character and on the other, the public good."

"Women on the public streets must be protected... and free from molestation..." Mr. Ostler told Durston that if he had not had a good record and if the prosecution had not concurred with the probation officer's recommendations the sentence would have been far more rigorous.

C OF C IDEA

Forbidden Plateau Park Plan

The federal and provincial governments were asked today to acquire the Forbidden Plateau area on Vancouver Island as a national or provincial park.

The request was made in a resolution passed by the B.C. Chamber of Commerce at its convention in Vancouver.

Courtenay-Comox chamber put the resolution before the convention, saying action is needed to meet a growing demand for recreational areas on the island.

ALPINE AREA

The plateau is a large alpine area about 15 miles east of Courtenay. Its acreage has not been accurately assessed.

It is owned by Canadian Pacific Railway, part of a land grant given for construction of the E. & N. Railway, which runs between Victoria and Courtenay.

A spokesman for the parks branch here said the government has held discussions with the CPR for purchase of the area. It would be added to Strathcona Park.

B.C. CHAMBER TO MEET HERE

The British Columbia Chamber of Commerce voted in annual convention in Vancouver today to hold its 1962 convention in Victoria.

It will be the first time in 11 years of operation that the provincial chamber's annual meeting will be held outside of Vancouver.

Korea
Coups
Shaky?

SEOUL, South Korea (Reuters)—South Korean Army reserve units today seized power here in a pre-dawn coup but reports indicated they did not have a firm grip on the country and were running into a lack of public support.

The reservists were in control of Seoul but American officials were working to convince them to abandon their coup and restore the legal government headed by Dr. John Chang.

A statement by the United States military command in Seoul, monitored in Tokyo, claimed that "no great amount of public support for the uprising has become apparent."

It said there appeared to be "only about 3,600 revolutionary troops" in Seoul. Earlier reports had placed the number of troops at 25,000.

"Troops of the frontline as well as the air force and navy remain steadfast in their positions and continue to assure the defence of the republic," the statement said. "Other cities in Korea remain relatively quiet."

CLAIMED CONTROL

The junta claimed earlier that it had control over other important South Korean cities and over all airports and harbors in the country.

It ordered martial law and a tight curfew imposed throughout the country and clamped censorship on South Korean newspapers.

American officials meanwhile appealed repeatedly to the leaders of the coup to restore the legal government of the country and pledged firm support for the administration by Dr. John Chang.

The revolutionary council set up by the leaders of the coup met for an hour this afternoon with acting American ambassador Marshall Green but showed no sign of giving in to the U.S. demands.

President Po Sun Yun, who also attended the meeting, was reported to be trying to work out a compromise that would involve forming a non-partisan cabinet in place of the revolutionary council to settle the problem without bloodshed.

SHOULD KNOW SOON

Observers said the next 12 to 24 hours should tell whether the junta would win or collapse. Much hinged on the attitude of heavily armed front-line South Korean troops.

The junta, led by army chief of staff Lt. Gen. Do Yung Chang, seized power after a violent gunbattle around the central government buildings about dawn.

The junta, after threatening earlier in the day to arrest all cabinet ministers, tonight promised that their safety would be guaranteed if they gave themselves up and resigned.

U.K. Soccer Players Attack Contract

LONDON (Reuters)—English soccer players today took a step toward breaking down the contract system that binds them to their teams.

Soccer league officials and the Professional Footballers Association reached an agreement stipulating that a player who does not want to sign again for his club when his contract expires must be put on the trading block.

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC may soon report a $2,000,000 budgetary surplus on its 1960-61 operations, corporation president J. Alphonse Ouimet said today.

He told the Commons broadcasting committee that the final accounting for the year ended March 31 may show the CBC capable of paying back the federal treasury that amount out of the $62,835,000 parliamentary operating grant it received for the year.

U.S. SUBSIDIARY INVOLVED

Canadian Pulp for Cuba

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Canadian subsidiary of a United States company is participating in a $1,000,000 order of pulp for Cuba.

The Columbia Cellulose Company plant at Prince Rupert is said to be providing more than half of a reported order of 9,000 tons of bleached and semi-bleached pulp.

The remainder of the order will be supplied by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company, a Canadian company. The total order is reported to be worth between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000.

A Columbia spokesman said a Liberian ship now is loading pulp for Cuba at Prince Rupert.

But he said he did not know how much of the order the company is providing.

Columbia Cellulose is a subsidiary of Canadian Chemical and Cellulose Company Ltd., a holding company organized by Celanese Corporation of America, a U.S. company.

Since relations between the U.S. and Cuba are strained and eventually broken the U.S. government has banned all exports of U.S. goods to Cuba except medical supplies and food.

The Cuban orders are believed to be forerunners of others. B.C. Forest Products will provide future shipments.

Red China in Overtures
To Canada at Laos Talks

GENEVA (Reuters)—The much-postponed Geneva conference on Laos today finally opened with an hour-long "business session," after which the delegates retired into secret session.

The move was disclosed today—the day of President and Mrs. John Kennedy's scheduled arrival in Canada on a brief official visit.

The Canadians have not accorded diplomatic recognition to the Chinese Communist regime, and External Affairs Minister Howard C. Green in an interview last week said he sees no prospect of recognition while Peking goes on pressing its claim to Formosa.

Canadian diplomats reported that the Chinese Reds made their quiet approach during the weekend and based it on an old personal friendship between two high officials of the conference delegations now in Geneva.

The meeting was between two ambassadors—Wang Pingnan, who heads the Chinese mission in Poland, and Chester Ronning, Canada's envoy in India.

In Ottawa, an external affairs department source said today the department has not yet received a formal report of contacts between Canadian and Red Chinese diplomats in Geneva, but described such meetings as "quite normal in the circumstances."

Urges Bond
Be Stronger

OTTAWA (UPI)—President Kennedy today opened his first visit to a foreign country with an appeal for the United States and Canada to stand together "even more firmly than before."

In a brief statement on his arrival for a 42-hour state visit, the president said he was confident that the two nations would work together in a massive attack on world problems.

"In the effort to build a continent of economic growth and solidarity—in an effort to build a hemisphere of freedom and hope—in an effort to build an Atlantic community of strength and unity of purpose—and in an effort to build a world of lasting peace and justice—Canada and the United States must be found, and I am certain, will be found, standing where they have always stood, together," he said.

"Kennedy added that it was 'fitting' he should make his first trip abroad as American chief of state to this country. He called Canada "the oldest of our neighbors and among the closest of our friends."

He made the brief statement in reply to one by Prime Minister John Diefenbaker asking the president to "continue the search for answers to the major challenges of this generation." Diefenbaker said both Canada and United States approached that search agreed on the basic principles of freedom, the "imperative need" to maintain Western unity and strengthen NATO, and the need to maintain adequate defences while seeking disarmament and a lasting peace.

The Boeing 707-jetliner carrying the president and his wife touched down at suburban Uplands Airport at 1:32 p.m. (PDT) amid overcast skies.

Heavy rain which drenched the capital earlier in the afternoon stopped by arrival time, but officials scheduled the formal ceremonies inside an air force hangar to guard against any eventuality.

hours of talks with Diefenbaker and other Canadian ministers, a nationally televised speech to the Canadian Parliament, and a formal reception-dinner at the U.S. Embassy.

Officials forecast that questions within the Western Hemisphere will dominate the discussions. The Canadian government is said ready to press Kennedy to go easy on Cuba. Washington reports say the President wants greater Canadian participation in Latin American assistance programs.

Laos, disarmament, NATO and Canadian-American relations are among the other likely topics.

Vanier, welcoming the Kennedys on behalf of the Queen, said it was "a great honor and a privilege" to have the American leader in this country. He added that he was "happy to greet a man whose standards of courage and integrity have been widely acclaimed."

From the airport, the president's motorcade drove 12 miles to Vanier's official residence. The drive gave Ottawa residents their chance to welcome the visitors. Officials had predicted a reception unrivalled except for members of the Royal Family.

Kennedy's first official act was to plant a tree on the Government House grounds, a traditional task for visiting dignitaries. He was to wind up the night with a state dinner and reception hosted by Vanier.

The meal of the visit lies in Wednesday's agenda. It includes a wreath-laying at the National War Memorial—expected to draw the biggest crowds of the visit—several

FINANCE BRIEFS

Committee Refuses T.B. Land Request

City finance committee Monday asked the TB Society of B.C. to ask Royal Jubilee Hospital for space for its proposed new clinic.

The society previously said its present building on the hospital grounds would be demolished as part of the site for the new wing and it asked for city-owned land behind the health and welfare building on Cook for a new $60,000 clinic.

But city manager C.C. Wyatt told the committee he had learned the hospital was prepared to offer the TB society alternative space "and, in fact, the hospital would like to see the new clinic stay on their grounds."

Committee recommended a Red Cross Society application for exemption of taxes on its 1046 Fort Street headquarters be rejected because of a two-year-old policy against tax exemptions except where compulsory by statute.

Mayor Percy Scurrell pointed out taxpayers already have to pay for services to $33,000,000-worth of exempt property and he questioned the fairness of adding to the burden for an organization that served people outside the city.

Efforts by Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities officials to persuade the federal government to extend winter work cost-sharing benefits to all civic projects carried out during the winter months were requested by the committee.

It also suggested that the Union of B.C. Municipalities continue its fight to convince the provincial government that permanent arbitration boards, with judges as chairmen, should be established to settle disputes with civic employees.

States reluctantly agreed to a compromise formula permitting full participation by the neutralist and pro-Communist delegations.

The West was expected to seek a ban on all arms shipments to the Southeast Asian kingdom in an attempt to solidify the shaky truce there. The British, Soviet, U.S. and French foreign ministers were reported to have reached tacit agreement to avoid raising issues that might put new obstacles in the way of negotiations in Laos between the warring factions for establishment of a single coalition government.

grain sales to China at this time of acute food shortage. 2. To express thanks for the work Canada has put in as a member of the control commission umpiring the Laotian truce. 3. To convey an assurance that China genuinely wants Laos set up as a neutral country whose status would be internationally underwritten.

The developing pattern of Canada's future relations with Red China is considered a certain subject of discussion when President Kennedy meets with Prime Minister Diefenbaker today and Wednesday. While the Canadians may not recognize the Peking authorities, Diefenbaker at the same time is unlikely to vote against Red China's membership in the United Nations if that issue, as expected, comes to a head soon.

Canada currently is beginning to do big business with Red China. Grain sales by 1963 are expected to top $400,000,000. Ottawa has invited Peking to send over an official trade mission to step up still further the volume of business between them.

Against that backdrop the Chinese move in Geneva is regarded as significant. Further exchanges between the two sides seem inevitable.

Five persons bought the water Saturday, at 85 cents for a quart can.

Crimmins said he would refund the money.

TAKES MESSAGE

Soviet Ambassador to the U.S. Mikhail Menshikov today delivered a message from Premier Khrushchev to President Kennedy but declined to say what it contained. Washington speculation, however, said it dealt with proposals for a Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting in the near future.

Seattle School Band Plays Here

The Shoreline High School Orchestra, from a school district just north of Seattle, will visit Victoria Saturday and give a public concert in S. J. Willis Junior High School auditorium starting at 8 p.m.

Its visit here is being sponsored by the Greater Victoria Schools' Orchestra group. Highlights of the band's performance will be Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," "La Scala Di Seta Overture," by Rossini, and the first movement from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony.

SCHOOL BOARD

Vic High Damage Assessed

Recent vandalism at Victoria High School caused $1,593 damage. Greater Victoria school board was informed Monday night.

Trustee Richard Reeve hailed a decision by the "vast majority of decent students" at the school to donate 10 cents each to a special fund for replacing model airplanes that were destroyed by the vandals.

The models, worth a total of $100, were not covered by the board's insurance policy as was the damaged school equipment. They belonged to several students.

Mr. Reeve added that he was sorry to see the destruction was reported in the newspapers because "by keeping it secret we are in a sense defecating the attempts by these youths to gain some kind of notoriety."

Leaves of absence for travel will not be permitted Greater Victoria teachers with less than five years' service in this district, trustees decided. Four applications for travel leaves were turned down under the new policy.

Installation of a $250,000 sewer extension passed by ratepayers last Thursday is expected to be finished by fall, Mayor Jack Dobson said today.

The program, largely for the Townsite area east of the city, was approved by a 255-41 vote in which 20 per cent of electors voted.

At the same time a $50,000 waterworks extension program was approved by 264-31 votes.

Most of the land involved is developed, but lies in a flood hazard area. Both projects involve mains and laterals and the sewer job includes a disposal lagoon.

Nuclear Policies Worry Voters

Nuclear weapons emerged as a major Esquimalt-Saanich issue Monday as questioners pressed candidates for their views at a five-party rally at Mill Bay.

Conservative George Chatterton drew most of the heckling from the crowd of about 80 in Mill Bay community hall.

Four Byelections Ready

Esquimalt-Saanich is the only riding with more than two candidates in four federal byelections to be held May 29.

Official nominations closed Monday. It is a five-party fight in Esquimalt-Saanich. The other ridings, in eastern Canada, feature a straight Liberal-Conservative contest.

Esquimalt-Saanich is the only riding where the New Party is in the running, seeking its second seat in Parliament. All four seats were formerly held by the Conservatives.

Esquimalt-Saanich candidates: David Groos, Liberal; George Hahn, Social Credit;

Glen Hamilton, New Party; and Thomas J. Kickham, Liberal.

George Chatterton, Conservative, and Don Poirier of the Socialist Party of Canada.

Norman Baker of New Westminster, who had announced he would be a candidate, running as "United Empire Loyalist," did not file a nomination.

Candidates in the Ontario riding of Leeds: John R. Matheson, Liberal and Elwood Stewart, Conservative.

In Kings, P.E.I.: Mrs. Margaret MacDonald, Conservative,

World War would not have occurred.

Liberal candidate David Groos said the nuclear threat "overshadows every other issue in the campaign."
